BRITISH VIEWS

Von Papen's Appointment

(Special to "Hong Kong
Daily Press")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894.
Received, July 28, 4.30 p.m.)

London, July 28.

The British Press comments this morning on von Papen's appointment forms a striking contrast to the attitude of the Italian papers which continue their hostility to Germany.

The "Daily Mail" welcomes Hitler's decision as an important step and as a clear proof that Hitler will offer no interference in the Austrian domestic affairs.

The "Daily Telegraph" is pleased at the general readiness of Germany to adhere to the view that for the time being and in the absence of any proof of direct official participation of Germany, no diplomatic action is necessary in Berlin. Papen's despatch to Vienna is a proof of Hitler's foresight which must be admired, concluded the paper.

The "Morning Post" diplomatic correspondent who is well known in British political circles, does not view Papen's appointment as a token of a change in the German policy towards Austria but merely as a change of methods at best. Transocean Kuo Min.

VON PAPEN'S APPOINTMENT

(Special to "Hong Kong

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Tele-

Received, July 28, 8.30 p.m.)

Vienna, July 28.

On the occasion of the appointment of von Papen, German Minister to Austria, the semi-official Reichspost writes, "true to the spirit of the great dead chancellor, Austria will contribute her utmost to diminish the tension in the European situation. The mission of Germany's new representative at Vienna will be honourable and successful provided that he proves to be really and truly an envoy of the friendly German Reich in Vienna and nothing else." "DEEDS, NOT WORDS"

(Special to "Hong Kong
Daily Press")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Tele-
graphic Messages Ordinance, 1894.
Received, July 29, 4.50 a.m.)

Berlin, July 28.

The German Press on Saturday night adopts a very outspoken tone towards the Italian attacks, declaring that the reserve to restrain hitherto shown, might, if prolonged, be interpreted as a tacit admission of the accuracy of the Italian charges.

The "Lokalanzeiger," for instance, says "it is inexcusable and incomprehensible of what the Italian Press poured out the last few days. The leading articles in the papers of every shade and opinion, declared that Italy is ready to maintain Austrian independence even by force of arms. The semi-official, 'Giornale d'Italia' demands 'deeds not word.'"

The "Tageblatt" writes, "the slogan of the Italian Press since Friday is 'deeds not words' but it adds itself that such deeds are only hypothetical."

Barthou's Visit To Rome

(Special to "Hong Kong
Daily Press")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Tele-
graphic Messages Ordinance, 1894.
Received, July 29, 4.30 a.m.)

Paris, July 28.

The French Press continues to discuss exhaustively every aspect of the situation created by the events in Vienna and the nomination of von Papen to be envoy extraordinary of the Reich in Vienna. The "Temps" states the opinion that the future of Franco-German relationships will depend on the recognition of Austria's independence and the development of affairs in Austria.

"Notre Temps" considers it possible that in consequence of the events in Austria, Franco-Italian rapprochement will proceed at a more rapid rate than expected, and that it is most likely that Barthou's visit to Rome will take place earlier than formerly scheduled. Transocean Kuo Min.

It is confirmed in well-informed French quarters that a diplomatic move is contemplated for the time being in the Austrian issue. The Austrian question is of an international nature and there can be no question of France taking isolated action. Transocean Kuo Min.

(Special to "Hong Kong

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Tele-

Vienna, July 28.

A well-informed source states that a new Austrian Cabinet cannot be formed before Wednesday so that the reaction of the Austrian Government towards von Papen's nomination cannot be expected before Wednesday or Thursday next week.

The new Chancellor will probably also be Foreign Minister. The summary trial of 144 insurgents will begin on Wednesday. Transocean Kuo Min.

RIETH EXPLAINS

A Telephone Call

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Berlin, July 27.
Such bitter controversy especially by the foreign Press has broken out concerning the part played by the German Minister, Dr. Rieth during the recent disturbances in Vienna that Rieth issued on Thursday night an authentic account of what really happened.

Rieth explains that "shortly before the expiry period within which the insurgents were required to answer the proposals made by Minister Neustaedter Steurmer, Rieth received a telephone call from Captain Friedrich, the commander of the group that had broken in the Chancellery, stating that in order to obviate further loss of life, an agreement had been reached with representatives of the Austrian Government whereby the insurgents who were already deprived of Austrian nationality should have safe conduct to some frontier. They had chosen Germany. Friedrich asked me to obtain from the Ministers a confirmation of this consent to safe conduct. This, I refused, and then Major Fey rang up asking me to come up personally to the Chancellery to hear the confirmation otherwise the agreement could not be carried out. As only a few minutes remained before the ultimatum expired, I complied. At the beginning of my conversation with Neustaedter Steurmer, the Minister informed me that Dollfuss was dead. Then both he and Fey confirmed the agreement they had made with the insurgents. Next, the State Secretary, Karwinsky asked that I come to the window where he was imprisoned. This I refused to do. This explanation in the course of events shows that I did not take the initiative of intermediary action but merely acted as a passive witness to the agreements already made.

Moreover, I did not act at the instigation of the troops that had broken into the Chancellery, but answered an appeal from members of the Austrian Government. I also emphasize that the declarations of three members of the Austrian Government concerning the safe conduct to the frontier were made after they had informed me of the death of Dollfuss so that this concession was given by the Austrian Government with full knowledge of this sad event."

A DETERMINED ESCAPE

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Munich, July 27.
Eight Austrian fugitives, the majority of whom were wounded in a gun battle with the Austrian frontier guardsmen, succeeded on Friday in reaching German soil near Passau and were promptly arrested by the Reich's frontier police.

The fleeing insurgents overpowered three Austrian customs officials and carried them bodily over the boundary in order to effect their adventurous escape.

ASSASSIN IDENTIFIED

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Vienna, July 27.
The identity of Dollfuss' murderer was established on Friday by the cross-examination of 150 insurgents arrested following the abortive putsch and ascertained that the assassin is a former Austrian soldier named Panetta who, after seventeen years of military service, was expelled from the army ranks last year because of seditious activity on behalf of a forbidden political party.

Out of the group of 144 who were disguised in army uniforms, and captured and for a brief spell held possession of the Chancellery on Wednesday, it has been found that 106 were discharged from the army for the same reason as Panetta, while all the rest are civilians.

Thirty imprisoned insurgents were transported on Friday from the police barracks, where all have been confined since their arrest on Wednesday, to the city prison. This group will be brought before a new court specially created on Thursday, to try Dollfuss' assassins, while the remainder will be tried for treason before a court-martial.

THE LAST RESPECTS

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Vienna, July 27.

The interior of the Volkshalle in Rathaus, that is, the City Hall where Dollfuss is lying in State is completely draped in black, the body resting on an elevated platform among the palms on the longer side of the Court. The guard of honour consists of two majors of the Federal army, two police officers, two officers of the Gendarmierie and four students in Corps dress from the University union to which Dollfuss belonged.

The public were admitted at nine o'clock when thousands filed slowly past in a never-ending line. All flags in all public and civic buildings were half mast on Friday.

The State funeral takes place on Saturday, and the benediction of the body at 2.30 before Rathaus. After the conclusion of the religious ceremony, President Miklas, Vice-Chancellor Starhemberg, the Lord Mayor of Vienna, Schmitz, and other official personalities will hold addresses. Thereupon the funeral procession under a military guard will proceed to St. Stephen's Cathedral where the consecration will be solemnised by the Cardinal, Archbishop Innitzer. "WATCHFUL WAITING"

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Geneva, July 27.

The reports from Paris that a special session of the League of Nations Council is being convened next week as the result of the events in Austria, were firmly denied here on Friday by the League of Nations Secretariat after enquiries were made in Rome and Paris.

Well-informed circles here believe that the League of Nations Council would not be convened at anytime to consider the internal situation in Austria but that if the Great Powers should at any time, decide on common action, it would be done without the intermediation of the League.

The general impression in Geneva is, however, that the Powers will confine themselves to adopt an attitude of watchful waiting.

THE NAVAL TALKS

The Tables Had Been Turned

(Special Air-Mail Service)

London, July 11.

M. Pietri, the French Minister of Marine, will, I learn leave London on Thursday evening, writes a correspondent. He has had a long talk to-day with Sir Bolton Eyres-Monsell and Sir John Simon. No information is given out officially, nor did one expect it any more in the Anglo-French talks, but the friends of M. Pietri are saying to-night that when Sir John Simon interrupted his talk with M. Barthou to talk to M. Pietri, he found that the tables had been turned. To M. Barthou he was a listener, to M. Pietri, he had to concede the role of listener.

Sir John had himself to explain the action taken by the British Government in protest against the Italian super-Dreadnoughts and the substance of Britain's preliminary consultation with both the United States and Japan over next year's Naval Conference. Indeed, the French point of view seems to be that there is little that France can contribute to the naval talks until the British Government has discovered some basis of agreement with the United States, Japan, and Italy.

THE THREE PACTS

From what one hears to-night, the most difficult aspect, from the British point of view, of the plans explained by M. Barthou in today's Anglo-French conversation on France's regional pact policy, is that which concerns the third of the three pacts. The full scheme consists of

A North-eastern European "Locarno" to be signed by Soviet Russia, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Lithuania, Estonia, Latvia, Finland, and Germany;

A Mediterranean Pact to be signed by Italy, Yugoslavia, Rumania, Greece, and Turkey, and a General Pact to be signed by all the signatories of existing pacts with the object of subordinating them to the Covenant of the League of Nations.

The first two pacts would not be signed by France as a direct party, but she would give a general guarantee of their execution, conditional, in the case of the first pact, on Soviet Russia's joining the League of Nations.

It is the third pact, which on the face of it looks the least, that is in fact the most controversial. Though it would not formally add to British commitments it would in effect substitute a common bond between all the other pacts. Great Britain and Germany being signatories of the Locarno Treaty would both have to sign it if its purpose were to be achieved. For Britain the question is whether by signing it the British Government would not be incurring some subtle indirect obligation in the Eastern Locarno. For Germany it would presuppose a return to the League of Nations, a step which on present evidence, seems unlikely.

MONT PARNASSE TRAGEDY

By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, July 28, 4.30 p.m.

Panic broke out among the public awaiting a train in the underground station at Mont Parnasse when a bomb suddenly exploded in their midst. Several persons picked up a parcel which was apparently left by a thoughtless passenger lying on the seat. They handed it to the station master who proceeded to open it, according to the regulations, in the presence of the "Anders." Before the wrapping paper was removed, a violent detonation occurred. The station master was so badly injured that he died shortly after being admitted to hospital.

As the terrified passengers began to stream out of the underground station, thousands quickly gathered around the spot and a second panic broke out as the blood stained station master was carried to the ambulance.

A "TALL" STORY

Man Only Three Inches In Height!

Shanghai, July 24.

The one that Chiang Keng-foo caught, was five inches long, or rather, tall—but you should have seen the one that got away. This statement does not refer to fish (this is not a fish story) but men. And the one that got away was only three inches tall believe it or not.

Chiang Keng-foo, a farmer's son, vouches for the absolute truth of his story, which appears in the "Sinwapa" as follows:—

A few days ago Chiang, a sober-minded lad was cutting grass on his father's farm at Han Tuo Wu, near Minghsong, when he was very much surprised to see two men, one three inches tall and the other five, come out of an old grave and start gambling about the field. Possibly they had got tired of staying in the old grave during all the heat and had come out for air. Anyway, Chiang lay down his scythe and started for the Lilliputians. Naturally, the men of small stature got frightened and began to run as fast as their tiny legs would carry them, which was not very fast.

And here tragedy enters the story. Chiang in his excitement, crushed one of the men of small stature with his foot and when he bent down to look at the Lilliputian, the Lilliputian was dead. He had a kind face too.

Of course, the other one got away, but Chiang picked up the body of the trampled Lilliputian and took it home; there it was viewed by hundreds of villagers mouths agape. The little man, however, cannot be seen there now because Chiang has sold it to one Mr. Sun Hsien-shan, a gentleman whose whereabouts are not known by the tellers of the story.

CANTON NEWS AND NOTES

Railway Agreement Ready

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, July 27.

The signing of a draft agreement between the Chinese and British sections of the Canton-Kowloon Railway will take place at Hong Kong to-morrow afternoon. The three delegates representing the Kwangtung Provincial Government made a report of the negotiations to Mr. Lam Wan Koy, Chairman of the Provincial Government, and to General Chen Tsai Tong, General Officer Commanding the 1st Group Army.

All the six Chinese delegates will be present to-morrow at the Kowloon office of the Railway to sign the agreement, which is based on a ratio of 72-28. This means that the receipts of the Chinese share are increased from 65 per cent to 78 per cent. Besides the apportionment of earnings, the agreement also covers other questions of technical co-operation of the through train service.

The new agreement, it is said, will be confirmed by the Ministry of Railways which will then ask the Ministry of Foreign Affairs to sign a formal agreement with the British authorities.

Sugar Tax Unchanged

Reports stating that the import duty on foreign sugar is decreased according to the new tariff of July 1 are denied in a telegram from the Ministry of Finance to the Canton Chamber of Commerce. The telegram stated that the rate on imported sugar is the same before.

Owing to some misunderstanding, there were criticisms against the reported increase of sugar which would benefit Japanese dumping.

Heat Wave Gone

Canton has been enjoying cool weather since last Sunday. Rain was falling during the earlier part of the week. The sun reappears to-day, but the weather is still cool owing to moderate south-east wind. Vernacular papers stating many persons were prostrated by the heat are exaggerated as Cantonese are accustomed to hot weather.

However, the police authorities are afraid that the heat wave may return. In that case, rickshaw passengers are requested not to make the pullers to run fast, lest they should faint on the way and upset the riders. Free tea stands are still in evidence in street corners.

The heavy rain during the past three days has swelled up the Pearl River, and at high tide the Bund and Shameen are one foot above water level.

WIERD LOOKING MONKS

Communist Spies In Disguise

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, July 27.

Striking a wooden drum mysteriously looking monks made their appearance at Kanchow, Nambong and other towns in Southern Kiangsi, begging for food and money. With long beard and piercing eyes, they loafed around the barracks and uttered queer prayers to the gods.

Children and women were often awed at seeing these uncanny monks who though dirty in appearance did not appear to be under-nourished nor did they know much about the principles of Buddhism. They begged for food and money, but after a while they changed the subject and discussed politics.

Soldiers were often amused by the catchy and fluent talk of these "Rasputins" who then expressed sympathy to the men in uniform for their hardships and told them that the generals got all the credit. Then the monks would ask a few questions about troops movements, and concentrations and the latest war news from the front.

The military authorities became suspicious of the influx of so many monks from nowhere and wondered why they wanted to know about the strength of the various divisions. A few of them were detained, and upon being searched they were found to be Communist spies.

General Yu Han Mou, officer commanding the first column of the anti-Red forces, who is here on leave, has ordered that all monks in his garrison area be detained for examination. Even the genuine monks are now in hiding for being arrested as spies, the penalty to them being execution by shooting.

The Red spies were sent to the Cantonese lines to find out the position and strength of their units. Desiring food and ammunition, the Communists are attempting to make a thrust southward. At the same time, the spies hope to win over the support of the Cantonese ranks.

General Chiang Kai Shek, Chairman of the Military Affairs Commission, in a personal letter to General Chen Tsai Tong, head of the Kwangtung forces, asked that the Cantonese detachments should immediately renew the drive from Kwan Mun Ling, Southern Kiangsi, and from Shang Hang, Western Fukien and attack the Reds at Hui Chang and Chang Ting.

According to a semi-official dispatch, the July appropriation of $600,000 Mex. has been remitted to General Chen Tsai Tong from the Ministry of Finance. This sum is to defray mobilization expenses of the Canton forces.

QUESTION OF BRITISH-BORN WHITE SEAMEN

In the House of Commons Capt. Moss (Con., Rutherglen) asked the First Lord of the Admiralty whether he could give any information as to the engagement of crews for ships of the Royal Fleet Auxiliary service both as regards the ships actually owned by the Admiralty and those under charter to the Admiralty from private shipowners; whether he was aware that some of these ships, such, for instance, as the War Sirdar, had Chinese crews; and whether, having regard to the unemployment among British seamen in this country, he would direct that British-born white seamen should always have the preference when crews were being engaged for these ships.

Sir Bolton Eyres-Monsell: The Royal Fleet Auxiliaries, none of which is under charter from a private shipowner, are manned with the following exceptions, by crews engaged in the United Kingdom. Vessels permanently attached to fleets on stations abroad are manned by local crews and in view of the climatic conditions, a few large oilers, including the War Sirdar, which are principally employed in the Far East, are manned by Chinese crews engaged at Singapore.

The standing instructions to masters provide that local crews are to be British subjects. In the case of Chinese ratings, it is not possible for this rule to be invariably observed, but otherwise none but British subjects are engaged. Other things being equal preference has been and will be given to British-born white seamen.

LESSON SERMON

First Church of Christ, Scientist

"Truth" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, July 28.

The Golden Text was: "Lead me in thy truth, and teach me: for thou art the God of my salvation: on thee do I wait all the day" (Psalms 25.5).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "I will praise thee, O Lord, among the people: I will sing unto thee among the nations. For thy mercy is great unto the heavens, and thy truth unto the clouds. . . . Make a joyful noise unto the Lord, all ye lands. . . . For the Lord is good: his mercy is everlasting; and his truth endureth to all generations" (Psalms 57.9, 10; 100: 1, 5).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "God is what the Scriptures declare Him to be—Life, Truth, Love. . . . In Science, Truth is divine, and the infinite God can have no likeness. Did God, Truth, create error? No! 'Doth a fountain send forth at the same place sweet water and bitter?' God being everywhere, and all-inclusive, how can he be absent or suggest the absence of omnipotence and omnipresence? How can there be more than all?" (pp. 339, 287).

"LET'S FALL IN LOVE"

Ann Sothorn's
Best

"Let's Fall in Love," Columbia's long-heralded and unique musical-romance in which the beautiful, golden-haired Ann Sothorn makes her cinema bow to motion picture audiences, will open its local engagement at the King's Theatre on Wednesday.

The glamorous story of Miss Sothorn's ascension to screen stardom in her first production is cast in the familiar mould of planned production of the book of "Let's Fall in Love," prepared by Herbert Fields, authors of numerous Broadway Musical successes, they could find no actress in Hollywood suited for the difficult role of "Sigrid Lund," and consequently turned their searching eyes Broadway.

The requirements for the leading role were strict. The girl had to be beautiful, blonde and captivating; she had to be able to sing and, most important she had to be able to talk English with a convincing Swedish dialect. In the memory of a Columbia Studios executive, lingered, talented young actress whom he had seen in the "Of these I Sing" company at the Music Box Theatre in New York. Telephone wires between Hollywood and New York hummed. When it was ascertained that Miss Sothorn was of Swedish ancestry, the slightly bewildered Ann was shipped post haste to California signed, sealed and delivered.

In keeping with the pretentious plans outlined for the production of "Let's Fall in Love," a superb cast, headed by Edmund Lowe, as Kenneth Lane, the resourceful director "who" "discovers" Miss Sothorn in the story, was assembled. Miriam Jordan as the embittered, fiancée who almost upsets Sigrid's apple cart; Gregory Ratoff as the producer, a role ideally suited to this fine actor's unique talents; Tala Birell as the temperamental star, and Betty Furness, Arthur Jarrett, Ruth Warren, Greta Meyer and Anderson Lawlor, in important supporting roles, comprise the supporting cast.

The story of "Let's Fall in Love" bears a slight resemblance to Miss Sothorn's own experience. The tale relates the trials of a motion picture producer who combs the country for a star who can speak Swedish. Kenneth Lane, the director, finds a girl in a circus who has the necessary beauty and can sing. He sends her to live with a Swedish family for education in the language and customs of the people, and then springs her on the public as a notable foreign star. All is well until the deception is betrayed by the director's jealous fiancée, and then the fun begins.

The music and lyrics in the picture were composed by the famous writing team of Harold Arlen and Ted Koehler, authors of "Stormy Weather" and other song hits. David Burton directed.

AN EXCELLENT FILM

"Frontier Marshal"
At The Alhambra

Rich in originality and invested with unusual force, "Frontier Marshal," Fox Film's latest romance, is showing at the Alhambra Theatre to-day and is a fast-moving, Western epic. Taken from incidents in the novel by Stuart N. Lake, the film is true and convincing. Wyatt Earp, the principal character in Mr. Lake's novel who was known as the fearless and courageous peace officer of the frontier, here comes to life, and George O'Brien, who portrays the character of Earp, gives a splendid performance in the leading role.

In love with the girl whose father has become the victim of the murderous individuals in Tombstone, Arizona, with the double aim of finding the murderer and of bringing law and order to the town. His suspicious are aroused by the Mayor who is in alliance with the outlaws that have given Tombstone its disreputable name. Tricked by the Mayor, O'Brien is accused of a robbery and is forced to leave town. The method by which he manages to extricate himself from these difficulties and bring peace and order to Tombstone is so exciting that you must see it for yourself to really appreciate it.

O'Brien is aptly suitable to his role, and gives of his best. Irene Bentley, who was last seen in "Smoky," has the female lead opposite O'Brien, and her performance is really something to talk about. Ruth Gillette as the lady Lou of Tombstone does yeoman work in her character portrayal. Others in the cast who acquit themselves creditably are Alan Edwards, George E. Stone, Berton Churchill, Frank Conroy, Ward Bond, Edward LeSaint, Russell Simpson and Jerry Foster.

Lew Seltzer did a splendid directorial job from the screen play by William Conselman and Stuart Anthony.

"A BEDTIME STORY"

At The Oriental Theatre

Maurice Chevalier and Baby Leroy in "A Bedtime Story" are now at the Oriental Theatre.

Rainier is the 31-year-old former lawyer who wrote "Please," the song hit of 1932, and "Moanin' Low," hit of the year before.

Within the past six months, Rainier has been called upon to produce a wide variety of music for pictures. He had to do the ultra-modern ballads for "The Big Broadcast"—"Please" and "Here Lies Love." He has to write rowdy Bowery songs for Mae West's picture, "She Done Him Wrong." He had to write the continental styled music for Chevalier's "A Bedtime Story." And now he's busy combining Bach, Chopin, Tschalkowsky and other noted composers into music for Mariene Dietrich's forthcoming film, "The Song of Songs."

Rainier wrote four numbers for Chevalier to sing in "A Bedtime Story." He worked in close collaboration with the star, in an attempt to fit the music to his personality. "A Bedtime Story" is the story of a new kind of Chevalier—a Chevalier who abandons romancing in scattered salons and houndairs for romancing at his heart's desire. This fact is accomplished after he finds a baby deserted in his automobile, and is so intrigued by it that he decides to raise it himself. He calls in a nurse to help in the task, and is soon pretty thoroughly intrigued by her too. But there are numerous humorous complications before everything is straightened out.

The chemist was in a bad temper. He had told his assistant to have a sign painted outside the shop, and when he saw it he was furious.

"You're a fool," he said. "But the sign is beautifully done," said the other. "It may be," said the chemist. "But who's going to rely on us when our sign reads 'In making up prescriptions we dispense with care'?"

LADY FOR A DAY

Now At The King's

"Lady For a Day," the first picture on the Columbia Pictures scheduled for the new year is now showing at the King's Theatre. It has been heralded by all who have seen it as one of the best talkies made.

Story, adaptation, cast and direction were of the finest quality; extra efforts were put forward by all hands, and the result is said to amply justify the pride the Columbia studio is taking in the finished product.

"Lady For a Day" appeared in the Cosmopolitan magazine a few months ago under the title of "Madam La Gimp." It was written by Damon Runyon, who has been called the "O'Henry of 1933" because of his humorous and dramatic tales of Broadway night life and its dames and guys. There are plenty of both in this picture although it revolves mainly about "Apple Annie," a haggard, old fruit-vendor, who is transformed into a "Lady For a Day."

Runyon's story was made into a screen play by Robert Riskin, a consistently good scenarist, who has been responsible for many of Columbia Studio's hits, "American Madness" is one of his recent artistic and box-office successes.

Frank Capra, "ace director of Columbia," and one of the star directors in the industry, who made "The Bitter Tea of General Yen," "American Madness," "Platinum Blonde," "Dirigible" and a score of other hits, guided the filming of "Lady For a Day." He worked with one of the finest casts assembled for a picture.

Warren William, handsome and popular star of many a recent picture, plays "Dave, the Dude," a typical Runyon character—a big-shot gambler, straight, likeable and picturesque. That grand old veteran of stage and screen, May Robson, plays "Apple Annie," and as a result of her excellent portrayal of this colorful character, has achieved stardom. Others in the cast are Guy Kibbee, Glenda Farrell, Jean Parker Norton, Walter Connolly, Ned Sparks and Hobart Bosworth.

EDUCATIONAL FILMS FOR SCOTLAND

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 11.

At the beginning of September, a first series of seven educational films will be shown in Scotland, programmes being submitted in Glasgow and Edinburgh, to teachers and educationists writes a correspondent. Gaumont-British Instructional, who are responsible for the most ambitious attack yet made upon the potential film market of the schools, have already produced about 80 different studies. These were shown to schoolmasters and other teaching specialists in London, and a questionnaire was issued to secure the reaction of the audience to the screen material shown. The high percentage of 85 voted in unqualified approval of the latest method of imparting information to scholars. On the documentary side of the business a splendid record has been made of the creation of the great new graving dock at Southampton, and there is now in production a study of the growth of the electricity "grid."

FIRST ARLISS FILM

"Iron Duke" As Subject

George Arliss will play the first Duke of Wellington in his first British film for the Gaumont-British Corporation.

Ever since Mr. Arliss signed his contract to make a film in England there has been speculation as to what part he would decide to play, for both Mr. C. M. Woolf and Mr. Michael Balcon, the chiefs of Gaumont-British Production, waited to consult Mr. Arliss when he arrived. It was suggested that he might play either Joseph Chamberlain or the Elder Pitt.

Mr. Arliss prefers historical to fictional characters, as they provide him with greater opportunities for subtle acting.

The decision to play the Iron Duke is of great importance to British pictures. Gaumont-British will make every effort to see that this film shall be worthy of being the first British National film with Mr. Arliss to be made in England.

The particular part of Wellington's career which has been chosen for the film is from the escape of Napoleon from Elba until the Second Treaty of Paris. Mr. C. M. Harwood, the dramatist, has prepared the story and is now writing the scenario.

Special features will be made of the Ball on the night before Waterloo, but no spectacular scenes of the battle itself will be attempted.

To Mr. Victor Saville has fallen the good fortune of being chosen to direct Mr. Arliss. This honour is well deserved, for ever since "The Good Companions" Mr. Saville has shown increasing powers of directorial ability.

There is another interesting

THE WOMAN BETWEEN

A Political Romance

A political romance is presented at the Queen's Theatre to-day in "The Woman Between," a product of Eclair Studios. Taken from the play "Conflict," by Miles Malleron, it has been translated to the screen by Miles Mander.

The story tells how a penniless down and out breaks into a house, surprising a beautiful girl with a political candidate. The girl befriends the burglar, who later on becomes Socialist candidate for the same district. She goes, slumming with him and gradually falls in love with him. The opposing party then declare that they will reveal to his constituents the fact that when he was "hard up" he stole a pound note from a coffee stall. The girl then takes the wind out of their sails by declaring that if they reveal the secret she will produce a skeleton in their cupboard, in the statement that she was living with the Conservative candidate.

In the end the girl gets her man, and the story finishes with the electorate singing the "Red Flag" and "God Save the King." This British "International Picture" is splendidly acted by Adrienne Allen, Owen Nares, David Hawthorne and C.M. Hallard.

point in connection with this film. Mr. Arliss now has no definite contracts to make pictures in America. It is well known that he would prefer to make films in Britain when he is satisfied that he can obtain the same facilities as in America.

With the success of "Wellington," it can be assumed that his alliance with Gaumont-British will be continued.

COOK CONVICTED OF LARCENY

Charged with the larceny of clothes belonging to his master, Mr. N. W. Hill of No. 43 Nathan Road, Sin Shing, a 40 year old cook was on Saturday morning sentenced to 12 weeks' hard labour when he came before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy.

Detective-Sergeant Davies stated that at 8 a.m. on July 26 the defendant was seen by an Indian Sergeant outside the Yau Sun Pawn shop with a pair of flannel trousers in his hand. When questioned, he admitted stealing them, and was taken to the station.

S.N.'s quarters at No. 43 Nathan Road were then searched and twelve pawn tickets were found. It was then discovered that one woollen pullover, two pairs of flannel trousers, and two woollen overcoats, valued in all at over $150, had disappeared.

Four of the twelve pawn tickets were for the property of Mr. Hill, while the defendant admitted the rest of the tickets were for the property of his former employer, who is now Home on leave.

ALLEGATION OF ROBBERY

An earth cooler was charged before Mr. E. W. Hamilton on Saturday with the robbery of $101.90 from Lam Yee, a shop fook.

While walking near Tai Wong Temple, last Thursday evening, two Chinese approached complainant from behind; one seized him by the throat, while the other removed the money from his jacket pocket.

The robbers made off down Ship Street, towards Luard Road. Giving the alarm, Lam started a chase, as a result of which Yau Chiu was arrested, while the other man is still at large.

Sub-Inspector M. Murphy, who is in charge of the case, asked for 48 hours remand, which was granted by the Magistrate.

SLY BROTHELS

Chinese Keeper Fined

As a result of Police raids on last Friday night, a Chinese named Ho Kwong, appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Police Court on Saturday morning, on a charge of keeping sly-brothels at No. 247, Portland Street, 1st floor, Yaumati.

Detective Sergeant Hynes in prosecuting told the Court that during the raids, the accused attempted to escape, but was stopped by the Chinese detective, who accompanied him, and was watching at the door.

The defendant pleaded guilty and a fine $350 or in default three months' hard labour was imposed. In addition to the fine, an order for the immediate clearing of the prostitutes was also made.

THEFT OF TROUSERS

Arrested in Des Voeux Road Central last Friday afternoon, with eight Chinese silk pants in his possession, a Chinese named Lam Lun, an unemployed, was charged before Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy on Saturday morning. When being arrested by the Chinese detective, the defendant told the Police where the pants were stolen and it was discovered that they all belonged to No. 14, Jervois Street, ground floor. The defendant pleaded guilty and a fine of $20 or in default two weeks' hard labour was imposed.

POCKET PICKING

A Chinese named Wong Ming, described as an unemployed, was convicted by Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Police Court on Saturday morning, on a charge of stealing a purse containing $12.75 from another Chinese named Chan Fook on board the steam launch "Hau Hol", and was sentenced to three months' hard labour.

The incident occurred on board the steam launch "Hau Hol" at about 3.15 last Saturday. During that time, the complainant fell asleep. The accused then came up and attempted to cut his purse, but was observed by the complainant's friend, who immediately raised an alarm and had him arrested.

When being searched in Court by the Chinese detective, a sharp blade was also found in the accused's pocket.

Shahab Din, a 50-year-old farmer, was fined $5 and ordered to be expelled from Hong Kong by Mr. Hamilton at Central Magistracy yesterday on a charge of entering the Colony without a passport. It was stated that defendant came to the Colony on July 12 from Canton, and that he was looking for a job as a watchman.

A charge of being in possession of over 3,000 taels of raw opium on board the s.s. Lee On was preferred against Tang Shiu Chuen before Mr. Hamilton at Central Magistracy on Saturday.

The case was remanded until Tuesday noon. Mr. R. C. H. Lim appearing for the defence.

NEW BUSES FOR KOWLOON

37 Seaters Arrive

The ever increasing passenger traffic in Kowloon has been a source of worry to the Kowloon Motor Bus Company, who in order to meet the demand, have purchased four new Thornycroft "Cygnets" 37 seater buses of the most up-to-date type.

The new machines arrived in the Colony last Wednesday by the P. & O. s.s. Rannura and have already been assembled with the exception of the bodies which are expected to be applied to chassis in the very near future.

The Bus Company expect to have the new machines on the road within six weeks' time. The buses are fitted with Gardner high-speed oil engines, of the vertical, four-cylinder, compression ignition type. The principle of these engines is similar to that of the Diesel engine, requiring no magneto or spark ignition, the fuel ignition being caused solely by the heat generated by compression.

The fuel is injected into the combustion chamber by an injection pump, which forces it through a sprayer, the fuel charges being regulated by an automatic governor. These are the first buses with engines of this type to be run in the Colony, all others being fitted with the ordinary petrol internal combustion engine.

The tyres, which are of the Dunlop Giant Pneumatic type, are the first of their kind seen in Hong Kong.

Vacuum Brakes

A special safety factor in these buses is the braking system, known as the Clayton Downard Vacuum Servo Triple System, which uses the vacuum created by the action of the engine in the induction pipe. This vacuum is used to provide a negative pressure in a cylinder controlled by the driver's foot on the brake pedal.

The bodywork of the buses is of the most modern design, the seats in the first-class compartment being fitted with Dunlop Sponge Rubber Seats, a great innovation from the comfort point of view.

Another consignment of these machines is expected to arrive on August 6, on the s.s. Somali.

WARRANT RANK EXTENDED

Officers' stewards are in future to be eligible for warrant rank in the Royal Navy. This is provided for in an Order in Council published in the London Gazette. The new ranks of warrant steward and commissioned steward have been established under the following conditions:—

(1) The total establishment of warrant stewards and commissioned stewards to be fixed at three.
(2) Warrant stewards to be eligible for promotion to commissioned steward at the discretion of the Admiralty on attaining 19 years' seniority as warrant steward.

(3) The rates of pay, half-pay, widows' pensions, and dependents' allowances to be at the rates applicable to warrant officers and commissioned officers from warrant rank of the non-mechanical branches, and warrant stewards and commissioned stewards to conform in all respects to the regulations governing the conditions of service of corresponding officers of the non-mechanical branches.

(4) Commissioned stewards to be eligible for a step in rank to paymaster lieutenant (O.S.) on retirement, provided that they have satisfactory records and have served not less than three years as commissioned steward on the active list.

This makes a total of 16 branches in the Navy in which it is possible for a rating to rise to warrant and commissioned rank. Up to 1909, the number was only seven. In all 16 branches the ultimate goal is the rank, or relative rank, of Lieutenant. Officers' stewards, it will be noticed, can become paymaster lieutenants (O.S.), but in general use ashore both the prefix and affix are likely to be dropped, adding still further to the large number of officers known as lieutenants who have never served as such on the quarterdeck.

A TRAGIC WEEK TWENTY YEARS AGO

July 29, 1914.
At St. Petersburg.—The Austrian ambassador assures Sazonov that the Austrian mobilisation could in no way menace Russia, and that secret orders have been given for a general mobilisation. "These last words," says the French ambassador, "make me jump." Sazonov tells him that the technicians have firmly declared that partial mobilisation is impossible. He adds, "Is not France as interested as we are that we may be able to intervene swiftly against Germany?"

That morning the chief-of-staff, Ianushkevitch, went to Peterhof, to the Tsar, to obtain his signature to two orders: that of the partial mobilisation and that for the general mobilisation. The Tsar signed both. Meeting the German military attaché on his way back, Ianushkevitch assures him that mobilisation has not been ordered. He had the order in his pocket, but it still lacked the signatures of the ministers of War, Marine and Interior.

They all three signed that day. Then Dobrorolski, director of Mobilisation, went to the central cable office to pass the order to the whole Empire.

When that evening Sazonov was cabling the ambassadors that Russia refused to stop her war preparations the Tsar received a cable from the Kaiser, which marked him change his mind. The Tsar decided to cancel the order for mobilisation and to substitute partial mobilisation. Paleologue who has heard of this cable Paris that the mobilisation is partial.

The preceding evening Belgrade is bombarded by the Austrians. At Paris.—Poincaré and Viviani land at Dunkerque. At noon they arrive in Paris. The French ambassador in London, cables to them that Grey has told him, that if the conflict is confined to Austria, Russia and Serbia, then England is not concerned. At Berlin.—Grey proposes a new intervention on the basis of "Stop at Belgrade" as previously suggested by Bethmann. Bethmann cables to Vienna, "We are ready to carry out our obligations of alliance; but we must refuse to be drawn in by Vienna without good reason, and unless our advice is listened to."

Moltke would like to take advantage of the situation, but Bethmann is opposed to his views. The military measures are: Protection of railways, recall of officers on leave and strengthening of fortress garrisons.

That evening at 11.30 p.m. Bethmann puts to the British ambassador the question of British neutrality. He adds that if war breaks out, Germany did not wish to take any part of France, but that this would not apply to her colonies. That she would respect the neutrality of Holland, but not that of Belgium, unless she remained neutral.

The British ministers declared that they could not admit the violation of Belgium, and Grey replied that the propositions of Bethmann, "could not be considered for an instant."

That same day Bethmann sends to the German ambassador in Belgium a sealed envelope, only to be opened on receipt of fresh instructions. The envelope contained the ultimatum to be handed to Belgium, in case war should be declared against France. At London.—Grey receives a cable from Goschen, ambassador at Berlin, giving a conversation with Bethmann. "He begged me to tell you, how great was the desire of Germany to work with England for the maintenance of peace, as had been done in the last crisis."

Winston Churchill sends out the warning telegram. The secret order is given to the Grand Fleet to pass the straits of Dover at night, for Scapa Flow. Apart from the prime minister—no other cabinet minister, or even the king—were let into the secret.

THE NEXT DAY

At Paris.—At two in the morning the Russian ambassador communicates a cable from Sazonov, stating that he has been warned by the German ambassador that if Russia does not stop her mobilisation, then Germany will mobilise. Sazonov prepares for war, and relies on the French assurances, which he has interpreted very broadly. Poincaré holds a night conference, and they frame a cable, that France is determined to fulfil her obligations as an ally, but that as conversations were being opened between the powers, it would be advisable for Russia to take no steps which might give Germany a pretext for mobilisation.

At St. Petersburg.—At two in the afternoon the German ambassador goes to the foreign office. He is broken down and begs some proposition. Sazonov thinks out the following, "If Austria recognises that the Austro-Serbian question has become European, and declares herself ready to eliminate from her ultimatum all points which attack Serbia's sovereign rights, Russia will stop her military preparations."

Pressed by the staff, Sazonov makes another attempt to obtain a new mobilisation order from the Tsar. At 4 p.m. the Tsar orders the general mobilisation. Dobrorolski again goes to the telegraph office and this time the order is passed through.

At London.—The French ambassador approaches Grey who is evasive.

At Paris.—At a cabinet meeting, the ministers are faced by a dilemma. On the one hand they wished to take all precautions against the German peril. On the other hand in order to preserve the neutrality of Italy and not to lose British co-operation, they did not wish to do anything that might imply mobilising before Germany. It was then that was given the order to withdraw ten kilometres from the frontier.

At Berlin.—At 1.30 p.m. the Local Anzeiger announces news of the German mobilisation. This was denied, and the paper seized. This false news was only known in St. Petersburg after the Tsar had ordered mobilisation.

King George sends a cable to Prince Henry, brother of the Kaiser. He proposes that France and Russia should stop their military preparations. Bethmann tries to stop Austria. But the German military party has decided to support Austria to the hilt.

The Austrian military attaché to Germany, after a conversation with Moltke, cables to the Austrian commander-in-chief. "Moltke says that he considers the situation critical if the monarchy does not immediately mobilise against Russia. . . . Make an honourable agreement with Italy, by promising her compensations, if she remains faithful to the Triple Alliance. Do not leave a soldier on the Italian frontier. Decline British advances for keeping peace."

To remain firm in face of a European war is the only chance for the dual monarchy. Germany will support her without conditions."

JURY SERVICE

Proposed Amendment to Ordinance

Amendments to the Jury Ordinance, 1887, proposed in draft bill contained in the Gazette. The objects and reasons explaining that section 13 permitted the Registrar of the Supreme Court, in forming any jury panel, to pass over the names of persons drawn who could not be served with summonses by reason of death or absence from the Colony. The substituted section 13 permits him in forming a panel under section 9 of the Ordinance, to pass over the names of persons drawn who in his opinion cannot conveniently be served in sufficient time to secure their attendance as jurors. Death inquires under section 8 of the latter Ordinance have to be held at very short notice.

Section 14 of the Jury Ordinance, 1887, required that jurors summoned should be either served personally or left at the usual place of abode of the persons drawn two clear days before the day appointed for the sitting of the court.

Mode of Service.
The provision requiring two clear days notice is impracticable in cases under section 8 of the Ordinance. The Abolition Ordinance, 1888, and unnecessary where personal service is effected. More-over with the expansion of residential districts on both sides of the harbour it has become increasingly difficult to effect service of the residential addresses of the persons drawn. For many years it has been the practice to serve the summonses by leaving at the jurors' places of business instead of at their residences.

The substituted section 14 requires two days notice only in those cases where personal service is not effected and regularises the practice of leaving the summonses at the places of business of the persons concerned. Section 3 amends section 23 of the Jury Ordinance, 1887, by allowing the clerk of the court to act as the officer of the court who takes and records verdicts. It is impracticable for the Registrar to be present in court on all occasions when verdicts are given, and the amendment regularises a practice which has prevailed for many years.

After deducting the ships counted more than once in the different ports, the number of entrances amounted during the month of May to 1,132 this year. For the whole region of the port of Rotterdam and environs comprising the delta formed by the mouths of the rivers Rhine and Meuse the figures from January to May this year as compared to those of last year are 3,228,247 to 7,884,456 respectively.

MARIE DRESSLER PASSES AWAY

A Great Film Actress

Santa Barbara, July 29.
The death has occurred of Marie Dressler, famous film actress—Reuter.

Worldwide Tributes

Santa Barbara, July 29.
Tributes are pouring in following the passing away of Marie Dressler, whose courage sustained her gallant but unavailing fight against cancer for days after the doctors had abandoned hope.

Among a few friends present at the bedside were Mr. and Mrs. Allenbregd Walker, who were constantly with Marie for the past three months and read her messages of sympathy and encouragement from all parts of the world.—Reuter.

On July 4, Marie Dressler was dangerously ill with heart and kidney trouble, but rallied. Earlier it was reported that she was dying. Hope was abandoned, her doctor saying, "I do not expect her to live many hours."

Everybody's Friend.
An earlier report stated: That great actress Marie Dressler lies grievously ill with heart trouble at the home of friends in Santa Barbara, California.

Her friends fear that she is sick unto death.

Her doctor says: "Miss Dressler has weakened considerably during the past few days. We dare not say there is no danger."

All Hollywood is concerned at the news, for Marie Dressler is everybody's friend. She is too old for any of the jealousies that may affect other stars of the screen to touch her. And anyway, if she were not too old she is far too wise to let such things as jealousies interfere with her well-being. Sixty-four years old is Marie Dressler, and 59 of those 64 years she has been on the stage, for she was but five when she first appeared as Cupid.

From then on she played every sort of role in every sort of show, and the talkies, which put an end to the careers of so many younger actresses, set her on a pinnacle all her own. For who but she could have played the parts she did play in "Min and Bill," "Tugboat Annie," "Anna Christie," and such films?

In 1931 she was awarded the rank of "The best film actress in Hollywood." And who shall say she did not deserve it!

FOREIGN BUDDHISTS FOR TIBET

Four of his most enthusiastic European followers may accompany the Living Buddha of Tibet should the Panchen Lama finally decide to leave this country to make his way back to his own.

The four European Buddhist, according to information just received from Peking, have all been in China for nearly ten years studying the principles of Mahayana Buddhism by coming into direct contact with actual conditions in Buddhist countries is the Far East.

The four intrepid followers of the Panchen Lama are Mr. Basil Crump, Mrs. Gordon Cleather, Mr. Graham Gordon Cleather, and Miss C. Davey.

Mrs. Cleather, Mr. Graham Cleather, and Mr. Crump came to Peking just recently to see the Panchen Lama about future plans, and were received by him last Sunday morning in the Chung Nan Hai, Peking. Miss Davey will go to Peking shortly from Canton to join them.

An invitation was extended to all these European believers for a trip to Tibet several years ago from the Panchen Lama, but it was continually put off as the Panchen Lama himself was delayed. Hope for the Panchen Lama to return to Lhasa, and for the European Buddhists to visit Tibet, was not revived until the death of the Dalai Lama last December.

Mr. Basil Crump, when interviewed on the possibilities of the Tibetan Pontiff's return to Tibet, said he had reason to believe His Holiness would introduce the use of radio apparatus and other modern means of communications to a limited extent. Further he also had reason to believe that the Panchen Lama, after his return to Tibet, would be in a position to cope with the delicate situation on the western frontier of China. Nevertheless in accordance with the Buddhist principles, the Tibetans would remain essentially a religious and pastoral people.

YESTERDAY'S RAIN

Fall of 5.51 Inches
In 16 Hours

The heavy rain which fell throughout yesterday was responsible for several minor landslides in all parts of the Colony in addition to the cancellation of all sports activities.

The first heavy shower of rain fell soon after 10.30 yesterday morning and it rained steadily without showing any signs of abating until about 1.30 p.m.

The heaviest fall was recorded between 11.30 a.m. and 12.30 p.m. when 1.16 inches of rain fell.

At the Royal Observatory 5.51 inches of rain were recorded between 3.30 a.m. and 7.30 p.m. yesterday.

A trip round the Island revealed several minor landslides caused by the undermining of foundations by the continual stream of water from overflowing drains and from runways on the hillsides.

Shortly before 5 p.m. yesterday a retaining wall at No. 41 Kennedy Road collapsed without much material damage.

A large landslide occurred in Link Road near St. Margaret's Church, partly blocking the road. Luckily at the time of the incident there were no pedestrians in the vicinity.

In May Road near Magazine Gap another small landslide took place and partly blocked the road. It was hoped to have the roadway cleared by midnight last night.

As a result of the rain the island and mainland reservoirs are overflowing.

Yesterday's lawn bowls matches were all cancelled, while most of the island golf courses were unplayable.

Traffic in the harbour was considerably slowed up and the ferry boats took longer than usual to cross owing to poor visibility, especially between 11.30 a.m. and 1.30 p.m.

ARRESTING BROTHER OFFICER

Amoy July 21.
It is not a common occurrence for one Police officer to arrest a brother officer, but such a thing came to pass yesterday.

Chinese constable No. 53 belonging to the Kowloon Municipal Police had, it is alleged, long been suspected for trafficking in arms and dope. Yesterday morning he was seen going to the S.S. Tsinan on a sampin. Secret Service men belonging to the Chinese Water Police trailed him, and after making sure that he had the contraband on him, they effected the arrest.

Th K. M. C. sleuth was however, too quick for the local cops. He burned the evidence against him, by throwing two packets into the sea. Both he and the sampin-men were placed in custody, and sent to the Public Safety Bureau for examination.

MERCHANT SERVICE DISCIPLINE

An article appeared in The Shipping Review of Shanghai on the subject of piracy guards, as instituted by the Hongkong Police. This article blamed the Hongkong Police for employing Russian sergeants, and suggested that these men dictated to the masters of the vessels, on which they were detailed for duty. The article is hardly fair to those concerned. The master of a vessel is in complete power on his ship, nor may anyone dictate to him about disciplinary matters. In the case of the piracy guards, the Hongkong Police are to be credited with a system which on the whole works very satisfactorily. If the master objects to the N.C.O. in charge he can have him changed at once, and the Hongkong Police do not object. As regards the employment of Russians instead of British, we would ask the question, can the police find more suitable men than those they have at present? We would suggest that the trouble does not lie in that direction, but rather in the whole question of ships flying the British flag. In any good shipping company, of undoubted British origin, there has seldom been interference with the authority of the master. But there are some ships plying from Hongkong under the British flag, where the Chinese owners have adopted British registration to suit their own convenience.

The conditions prevalent aboard some of these ships are scandalous, and the master and officers have no authority. They may have to accept the dictates of a Chinese comprador or else lose a badly paid job. We have heard of a case where an officer lost his job for no other reason than that he refused to disobey the Rule of the Road. He was asked not to sound his siren in a fog because it disturbed the passengers, and the comprador's staff. Had he accepted then not only would he have

RUSSIAN DELEGATION TO JAPAN

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages, Ordinance, 1894. Received, July 29, 7:30 p.m.)

Moscow, July 29.—The appointment of ex-Ambassador Rakovski as leader of the Russian delegation to Japan has attracted great attention in political circles. It is learned that upon the conclusion of his mission to Japan he may receive an appointment somewhere in Europe.—Transocean Kuo Min.

TYPHOON WARNING

been jeopardising his own ship, but also any other ship in the vicinity.

Such a state of affairs is so disgraceful that one wonders why a shipping port of the importance of Hongkong does not insist on the application of all Board of Trade regulations to those vessels registered here. It stands to reason that on such ships the master is in danger of not being able to apply ordinary regulations, quite apart from the special piracy regulations. Is the problem of obtaining suitable officers so difficult? We could suggest various methods by which these owners could be forced to make their ships efficient.

In the first place as it is only the certificate that the owner needs he could be made to deposit a guarantee of six months wages for any officer he employs. Should he then dispense with an officer for any other reason than proved inefficiency, he could be made to forfeit this deposit to the officer. A system where an owner can employ an officer, and throw him out because he does his duty, needs prompt and careful investigation. Such a state of affairs should be stopped forthwith.

If the British government then does not take any steps to insure that the master of a ship have full authority in his ship, it can hardly be a matter for surprise that British vessels have such a difficulty to face the crisis, which is sweeping the world. In fact the British mercantile Marine would merely be getting their just due, of obtaining support from the government in order to maintain their very high reputation.

The state of affairs is unfair not only to the British Mercantile Marine but also to the Chinese government. Why do not these people use the Chinese flag? It is obvious that there must be some good reason for it, and if anything goes wrong the Chinese authorities have all the trouble of dealing with the British authorities, with the resultant bad effect on friendly relations.

It might be argued that an investigation would be against the principle of the liberty of the subject. The Chinese owner can do what he likes with his vessel. Why should he be allowed to do what no British owner would dare to do?

While in no way wishing to stir up unnecessary action, which would be the case if merely piracy guards aboard ship were to be investigated, as our contemporary suggests, at the same time there is the greatest need for a prompt examination into the status of masters and officers aboard some ships, where a situation exists which is not only contrary to all the custom and regulations of the sea, but also a menace to shipping in general.

SILK INDUSTRY

Ten Year Plan
Being Drafted

Kobe, July 19.

Under the direct supervision of Mr. Yamazaki, the new Minister of Agriculture, the Sericultural Bureau is busily engaged in drafting emergency and permanent measures for the rehabilitation of the sericultural industry, especially in view of the growing demand for a special Diet session.

According to the Japanese press, inasmuch as the measures hitherto taken were partial and independent, the Department authorities have decided to establish a more rational and concentrated scheme. Based on the present status of the industry, as well as the demand and supply position, a wholesale readjustment of production and marketing is to be conducted. The whole scheme will extend over a period of five or ten years.

To meet this change in the Government's fundamental policy, a readjustment of budgetary appropriations is likely to be effected. The following are the salient features of the new programme put forward by the Sericultural Bureau.

1.—Control of cocoon production.
(2) To improve 100,000 chobu (245 acre units) of the devastated area of mulberry farms, out of the 230,000 chobu total, the Government introduced a three year plan in 1932. The scheme is to be completed this year, but the area actually improved so far is not quite 50,000 chobu. With a view to improving another 10,000 chobu in the next five years, the Sericultural Bureau is to demand an expenditure of ¥10,000,000, the allotment for the initial year being ¥2,000,000. (b) In order to exercise effectively the Silk Egg Cards Control Law, shortly to be enforced, appropriate measures shall be devised. (c) Temporary restriction of production.

2.—Reform of cocoon disposal.
(a) With an annual expenditure of ¥150,000 to ¥180,000, the Government has been encouraging the establishment of dried cocoon warehouses, with a view to popularising transactions in a dried state. Business in a dried state, however, is still very limited—only about ten per cent. of the total. Further efforts should be made. (b) At present 45 per cent. of the cocoons produced are sold by farmers to dealers under special contracts. As this is liable to benefit filatures, strict surveillance should be exercised. (c) Reeling under consignment should be encouraged in districts where the guild system is not yet popular. (d) Reeling under the guild system should be counteracted.

3.—Rationalisation of cocoon raising business. (a) In consideration of local conditions, cocoon raisers should be urged to start other lines, so that their cost of production can be reduced, and the risk of relying simply on cocoons allayed. (b) Experts should be appointed so as to guide cocoon raisers properly.

4.—Control of silk exports. The Silk Commission should be instructed to formulate a definite plan before the next session of the Diet. Efforts should be made towards the reinforcement of the existing Export Silk Trade Law.

5.—Reform of banking facilities to filatures.

6.—New uses for raw silk and exploitation of new markets abroad.

If Gossip We Must

(By PRUDENCE)

Holidays have begun and schools are shut. The Teaching Staffs have all set off for gay holidays in Japan (or other attractive places), and the Mothers of the Colony are facing up to the problem of how to keep the children happy and healthy, during the long hot summer days.

It is too sunny after tea o'clock, so most children have their walks before breakfast, and that is their chance to book engagements to spend the later hours in each others houses; the general arrangement being to go "as soon as Amah has had her chow."

But these morning parties make going out to tea lose much of its spice in consequence, and many parents make a point of taking their children down to the beach once or twice a week, but Friday is considered quite the best day of all by those who live on the Peak for Friday is the Children's Club Day.

Long before the appointed hour the children are ready and eager to start, and streams of jolly little boys and girls may be seen heading up-hill in the direction of the No. 1 Bank House so kindly lent by Mr. Grayburn every week.

I followed the crowd last Friday and was rewarded by a very charming and interesting afternoon.

Under the skilful direction of Mrs. Gordon Mackie and her helpers the Club is splendidly organized and much useful work is being done.

The wide cool verandahs of Bank House are admirably suited to the needs of the children for the sun is so much to be avoided.

Under the direction of Mr. Raworth and Mrs. Bousfield the bigger girls make all sorts of pretty and useful things. Among these keen and serious workers I noticed Evelyn Buyers, Phyllis Oliver, Fay Field, Pamela Carrington-Sykes, Barbara Rolfe, Berty Warren, June Hartill, Jean Browne and Jean Turnbull. In their dainty summer frocks, with flushed cheeks and intent eyes bent on their work they made a charming picture which might have been stolen from that delightful old-world film "Little Women."

LIFE-LIKE RACE HORSE

The next group consisted of smaller girls working under Mrs. Knight and her two helpers Miss Leckie and Mrs. Heathcote Locke. Bright work and knitting were the order of the day with these little people and the helpers were kept busy with dropped stitches and needle-threading (for wool is such sticky stuff) as one little girl remarked, "but the children love it, because of the vivid colours." Julia Swan in dainty print, Pamela Greenhill in all rose colour, Rita Langstone in a pretty dress spotted with pink, Helen Tracy fair-haired and beaming in blue and white, Little Gisela Gipperich in a charming dress that matched her knitting, Elizabeth Black with her sparkling brown eyes, Isabel Butters fresh and cool in cowslip yellow, Margaret Purves in gay flowered-print formed a sweetly pretty group of little workers.

A solid foundation—the new Bank Building

SMACK OF FAWN

Rounding a corner of the verandah I discovered Mrs. Colin Black and Mrs. Buyers surrounded by "Club Babies" aided by Miss Jean Mackie, Miss Taylor and Miss Ainsworth they were learning how to make bags and purses out of canvas. . . . there I saw Bernard, Richard, Billy, Loveday, Ethel, Wilfred, Sheila, Vera, Jean, Gracie, and many other small brothers and sisters of the bigger children.

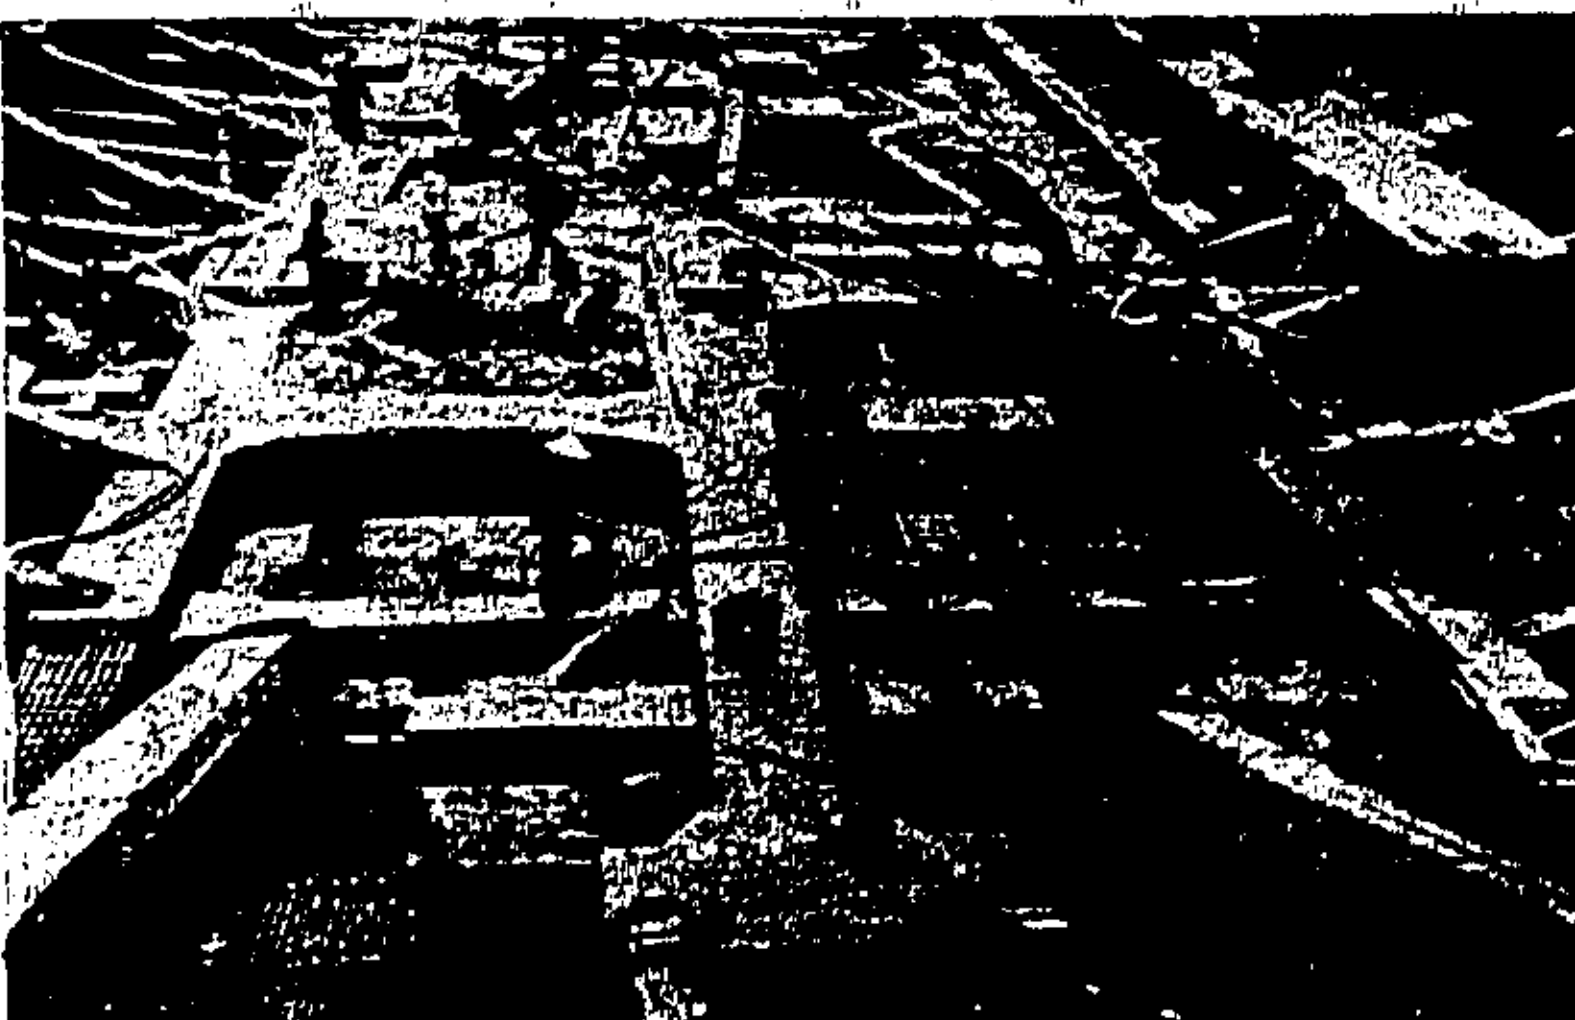

On the west verandah Miss Pamela Scott-Harston had fitted up a splendid carpenter's shop, which attracted all the big boys who were busy doing fascinating fretwork in strong plywood. Alan Taylor, Jimmy Tracy, John Hartill, Otto Reiss, and other boys were hard at work and I was very struck by the life like race-horse that Matthew Carrington-Sykes had almost finished, and made a mental note to buy it (if I can) at the sale.

A counter attraction which lured some of the smaller boys was the stencilling table, conducted by Mrs. Forster and Miss Dowbiggin where pots of brilliant paint and squares of rice paper were being combined to the infinite enjoyment of all the young artists. The break for drill, games, buns, and lemonade prevents the work from becoming irksome and the fun of changing their books at the Club library appeals to boys and girls alike. . . . so hats off to the Children's Club, and all those who work there at!

THE SWIMMING GALA

"I never can keep away, when there are swimming sports to be seen at the V.R.C. and those last Saturday attracted a bigger attendance than usual."

Every seat was filled. Sir Thomas and Lady Southern were present (the latter looking extremely charming in a dress of clear terra-cotta) and with them in the seats of honour near the "high-dive" were Colonel Dowbiggin and Miss Jean Dowbiggin. Dr. and Mrs. G.D.R. Black, Major Carrington-Sykes, Mr. Eric Mitchell and several others.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

A dance will be held at Mountain Lodge on August 18.

Mr. J. G. Plicher, Private Secretary to His Excellency the Governor, returns from holiday tomorrow.

An "At Home" to Girl Guides and Boy Scouts will be held at Mountain Lodge on Saturday, August 25.

The Prison branch of the M. C. L. is holding a whist drive on Thursday next, at 3 p.m., at the Prison Officers' Mess.

Members of the Craigsower Cricket Club are asked to note that the fortnightly whist drive will be held on August 4.

The open air concert which was to have been held at the Kowloon

Cricket Club on Saturday night has been postponed until next Saturday.

Dr. E. L. Allen, M.A., Ph.D., will address Rotarians at their usual weekly dinner at the Hongkong Hotel tomorrow. The subject will be "Dr. Morrison."

The Marcus Show, the theatrical troupe which recently played a successful season in Hongkong, left for Singapore on Saturday by the S.S. Ranchi.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Ralston, Mr. and Mrs. W. Kay and Mr. and Mrs. L. H. V. Booth left the Colony on the Empress of Japan for a short holiday.

H. Christianson, of No. 3, Kimberley Villa was admitted to the Kowloon Hospital on Friday last after having been bitten by a dog, which has subsequently been removed to Matakok for observation.

I may as well confess that I fully intended to study all the pretty dresses (and there were more than ever this year) but soon felt thoroughly ashamed of such frivolous ideas. . . . when I found myself surrounded by serious-minded reporters intent on nothing every second of every race, and fully qualified to comment on the niceties of each wonderful swallow-dive, and the importance of keeping hands off the pole, when sitting astride for the purpose of pillow fighting!

The Ladies Race got the most applause; and though Miss Hunt did not win, it was obvious that she was a firm favourite from the hearty shouts of "Doris, Doris, keep it up Doris" which greeted her from every side: Mrs. Mead swam a very pretty race and seemed to exert herself less than the losers, giving the impression that she had a lot in reserve even when winning.

AND SO TO THE HOTEL

Thwarted in my attempts at fashion notes I ended the evening by dancing at the Hong Kong Hotel and found that most of the other people from the V.R.C. had the same grand idea. Mrs. Bellamy in pale green wore a long rope of jade beads to match. Miss Sylvia Morris looked charming in an unusual shade of deep rust-red.

Miss "Pitts" in forget-me-not blue looked quite unforgettably fair and lovely. Miss Dadds was very smart in black with a tiny white silk coat. Mrs. Deans Reiss was there wearing pale sea-green. She, by the way, was one of the "lucky" people who just missed that dreadful hotel fire at Unzen a few weeks ago.

"Miss Marion Wolfe looked very sweet in a dainty dress of flowered silk, and Miss Cranfield delightful in blue and white chiffon worn with blue slippers. Miss Thomas had a frock of fresh green organdie while Miss Dunnett had dark green roses hidden in the folds of her crisp white organdie, and a sash to match. Mrs. Truile was wearing charming diagonal stripes of black and white, and I did admire a lovely dress worn by the pretty stranger, of white edged organdie and capped by deep flounces of pale salmon pink.

SAVIOUR OF AUSTRIA AND THE PEACE OF EUROPE

Tributes At Funeral Of Late Leader

A FOREST OF LIGHTED CANDLES

Frau Dollfuss In Mile-Long Procession

"Dollfuss not only saved Austria but the peace of Europe and sealed these acts with his blood," said President Miklas in a striking tribute to the departed leader at the funeral on Saturday, which was marked by impressive scenes.

Delegations from all parts of Austria, Ministers and Members of the Diplomatic Corps were among the mile long procession which paid their last respects. Frau Dollfuss, in a long black veil, presented a pathetic figure.

THE LAST SCENES

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, July 29, 4.30 a.m.)
Vienna, July 28.

The final act of the drama through which Austria has been passing during the last few days, took place on Saturday when the mortal remains of the murdered Chancellor, Dr. Dollfuss, were laid to rest. The ceremony provided a spectacle which has never been seen in Vienna since the funeral of Emperor Franz Joseph. Even on Friday most houses displayed flags draped with crepe but on Saturday the demonstrative signs of national mourning appeared to be endless. All public and almost all private buildings flew black flags and pennants. The entire nation seems to be profoundly affected by the shadow of the tragedy. Steps had been taken to assure order and calm on the Chancellor's last journey.

The Volkshalle was closed for the public on Friday when the coffin was removed to a large open space in front of Rathaus and there again lay in state. The guards of honour consisted of members and students of the "Francobabajar" corps, to which Dollfuss belonged, the officers of the Federal army and the police.

Members of the Dollfuss family, representatives of the Government, and close personal friends of the Chancellor were grouped around the coffin. At 2.30 the burial ceremony began and was broadcast over all transmitters in Austria, Italy, Hungary and 417 stations in North America. Cardinal Innitzer pronounced the first benediction then President Miklas held an address immediately after which the Vice-Chancellor, Prince Starhemberg spoke, saying the work of Dollfuss would live as long as Austrian history lasted. The body was then conveyed to St. Stephen's Cathedral.

MILE LONG PROCESSION

Vienna, July 28.
Impressive scenes were witnessed when the remains of Dr. Dollfuss were conveyed from the City Hall to St. Stephen's Cathedral and thence to Heitzing Cemetery. Only a few thousand privileged guests were admitted to Rathaus Platz, all entrances to which were guarded by machine guns, while anti-aircraft guns were mounted at several points.

After speeches had been delivered at Rathaus, the coffin was covered with a red and white flag, wreaths of red and white roses, and carried out between a forest of lighted candles. The coffin was conveyed on a gun-carriage drawn by six black horses to St. Stephen's Cathedral.

A group of Ministers led by Prince von Starhemberg followed. Frau Dollfuss in a long black veil presented a pathetic figure. The procession, a mile long, included Ministers, members of the Diplomatic Corps, troops and delegations from all parts of Austria.

PRESIDENT'S EULOGY

A striking eulogy to Dr. Dollfuss was paid by President Miklas from Rachaustrasse. He said that Dr. Dollfuss has saved Austria from losing her soul and prevented Austria from becoming a battlefield in Europe and from final extinction. In the Central European chaos Dr. Dollfuss had not only saved Austria but the peace of Europe, and he sealed these acts with his blood. He died a martyr in the cause of Austria.

TRAFFIC STOPPED

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, July 28, 8.50 p.m.)
Vienna, July 28.

All trains on the Austrian railways will come to a halt on Saturday afternoon at 2.30 p.m. for two minutes in token of mourning for the late Chancellor Dollfuss. All shops and places of public amusement will be closed on Saturday afternoon while the state funeral is taking place.

VIENNA BROADCAST

Rome, July 28.
Every wireless station in Italy and also the Vienna broadcasting station will relay an address in Italian and German on Dr. Dollfuss from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. to-day, by an Austrian boy who is staying at the Austrian youth camp at Onda, where an altar containing a photograph of Dr. Dollfuss has been erected.

Prince Starhemberg's broadcast speech yesterday evening was received with profound approval. A violent press campaign against Germany has been whipped up here, by the journal "Messagero," which declares that Signor Mussolini's prompt action had the desired effect.

"It is only too often, that the promises of the German Government are not observed. We will not treat on a footing of moral parity people who fail with such cynicism to observe the laws of honour," the Fascist organ declares.

The "Popolo di Roma" expresses astonishment that Chancellor Hitler knew nothing about the murder of Dr. Dollfuss while his lieutenants were plotting and scheming and the newspapers and wireless were shouting and screaming.

The "Ottobre" says, "scratch a German and find a barbarian."

RINTELEN'S ROLE

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, July 28, 8.30 p.m.)
Vienna, July 28.

The papers are still much concerned with the role played in the recent putsch by the Austrian Minister to Rome, Dr. Rintelen, who attempted suicide while under detention at the Ministry of Defence and whose condition is still critical.

It is pointed out that the insurgents in the course of negotiations conducted during their occupation of the Chancellery Building repeatedly referred to Rintelen who had been, moreover, stated as successor to Dollfuss, a fact which according to the papers requires rigid investigations.

It is interesting to note in this connection that the Prague paper characterises the insurrection as a "trial of strength between Dollfuss and Rintelen," the latter often have been called "the uncrowned King of Styria" and having, according to the Prague papers, long held the ambition of becoming dictator.

It is reported that Dollfuss left a "political testament" laying down the principles of his policy. This is believed in well-informed quarters.

RELIEVED OF POST

Vienna, July 29.
Rintelen, the Austrian Minister to Rome, has been formally relieved of his post.

THE DEPARTED LEADER

TOTAL CASUALTIES

Vienna, July 29.
It is officially stated that the total casualties among the Government forces in the fighting throughout Austria were 78 killed and 165 wounded. The Nazis estimate that they had 200 dead.

FRESH TROUBLE

Vienna, July 28.
Martial law has been proclaimed at Salzburg, near the Austro-Bavarian border, owing to fresh disturbances. It is not yet known how far this will affect the musical festival, the opening of which was fixed, for to-night, but it has already been postponed owing to the funeral of Dr. Dollfuss.

Many foreigners are staying here at present. Large bodies of Nazis are still holding out in Carinthia and are not expected to be cleared up before Monday.

In the meantime the Austrian Minister to Rome, Dr. Anton Rintelen, who, despite reports to the contrary, is still alive, is believed to have played a far greater part in the revolt than was previously thought and it is reported that Herr Brande, the dismissed Police President, has committed suicide.

It has been established that the Austrian Legionnaires, who assembled at Præval, Yugoslavia, commanded by Count von Reinsdorf, have crossed the frontier into Carinthia to reinforce the Nazis.

APPOINTMENT DISAPPROVED

Rome, July 28.
The appointment of the German Vice-Chancellor, von Papen as German Minister to Vienna, is regarded here with disapproval and is compared with establishing a German High Commissioner in Austria with the German Legation as a sort of branch of the Government of Berlin.

SUGGESTED CONDITIONS

Vienna, July 28.
It is learned that Vice-Chancellor von Papen will not represent Germany at the funeral of Dr. Dollfuss. Although the Austrian Cabinet have accepted him as German Minister they have not yet decided whether any conditions should be imposed on Germany before von Papen is actually received here.

Among the suggested conditions are the dissolution of the Austrian Legion in Bavaria, the severance of all connection between the Austrian Nazis at Munich, the headquarters of which supplied them with bombs and money, and the formal recognition by Chancellor Hitler of Austrian independence.

In the meantime von Papen is remaining in Berlin where he has work to clear up. The British Minister at Vienna, Sir Walford Selby, and Signor Mussolini's special envoy will walk in the funeral procession.

ITALIAN TROOPS

Berne, Yesterday.
Two divisions of troops have been despatched from the south of Italy to replace those in the Italian Tyrol, which are 80 per cent. German, according to Italian reports.

TAKING NO CHANCES

Rome, July 28.
The Italian Premier, Signor Benito Mussolini, does not protest to Berlin regarding the Nazi coup in Vienna. He is determined, however, to keep troops on the frontier and to use them unhesitatingly to defend the independence of Austria against any power interfering.

It is not clear whether he still considers it necessary to consult Places as far apart as Croydon, Cambridge and Southend were affected and thousands of private houses and public institutions were deprived of electricity during varying periods. Trams in many parts of North London were brought to a standstill and traffic was temporarily disorganised by the failure of traffic indicators. The supply in most cases was restored after an hour.

JAPANESE NAVAL POLICY

Delegate to London Appointed

(Special Air-Mail Service)
London, July 11.
The Ministry of Marine formally announced on Monday the appointment of Captain Yasutaro Iwashita as the Japanese delegate to the preliminary naval conversations in London. He will leave for London via America on July 12. According to the Asahi, Captain Iwashita has been fully apprised of the Japanese disarmament programme, which he will communicate to Mr. Matsudaira, the Ambassador in London, as well as advising the Ambassador on technical questions in the course of the negotiations. This report must be accepted with reserve, since the Ministry of Marine has carefully refrained, in response to inquiries, from saying whether the Japanese delegation, technical or otherwise, will be empowered to discuss more than the nature of the items for the Naval Conference reports state that Captain Iwashita will inform Mr. Matsudaira of the "atmosphere here regarding the Naval Conference." This is taken to refer to the movement among naval officers for the abolition of ratios, according to the terms of a petition which is said to have been sent to Admiral Osumi, the Minister of Marine. The movement will undoubtedly be of importance in determining Japanese policy both before and at the Conference.

KING'S SILVER JUBILEE

London's Plans For Celebrations

(Special Air-Mail Service)
London, July 11.
May the Sixth, 1935, will be the 25th anniversary of the King's accession to the Throne, and on that day there will begin rejoicings throughout the Empire. There will be a State procession to St. Paul's Cathedral for a Thanks-giving service. The King and Queen will drive through London through the North and North-West districts one day; through the South and South-East district another day. Representatives of the Dominions and Colonies and special envoys from foreign countries will be here. It is proposed to hold a State banquet at Buckingham Palace at which the Dominion and foreign representatives will be the guests of the King and Queen. There will be a gala performance at Covent Garden Opera House. It is probable that there will be a special occasion for the presentation of congratulatory addresses and messages to the King and Queen; and probably, too, that gifts which the King and Queen are asked to receive will be placed on view to the public, in aid of charity. The striking of a special medal and the declaration of a public holiday on May 6 are included in the plans for the national celebrations, which will be considered

A SMALL ESTATE

Made A Fortune, But Gave It Away

(Special Air-Mail Service)
London, July 11.
Sir Gerald du Maurier, the famous actor, who died on April 11, is shown by his will to have died a comparatively poor man. His estate has been proved at £18,031 gross with net personality £3,343. Sir Gerald made a fortune from his many theatrical enterprises, but was, without doubt, the most generous-hearted man in the theatre. No cause did he refuse to assist as much as he could; no-one who needed help appealed to him in vain. The number of distressed stage-actors and other folk whom Sir Gerald was supporting, unobtrusively, and even without the knowledge of his best friends, will never be known. In his long association with the stage—he was 81 when he died—he must have given away thousands of pounds. It has been said—and not without truth—that to any plea for help Sir Gerald was incapable of saying "No." Probate of his will, dated August 22, 1931, has been granted to his widow, Dame Muriel du Maurier, the sole executrix. He left his interest under his mother's will to his wife for life and all other his property to her absolutely.

INFANTRY UNIT WIN CORPS CHAMPIONSHIP

Sensational Result In Ladies Race

(BY "TROUT")

Displaying an all-round superiority in swimming, the Infantry Unit of the Hong Kong Volunteer Defence Corps carried off the Corps Inter-Unit Swimming Cup at the annual swimming sports, which were held on Saturday night, before a large gathering including the Colonial Secretary, Hon. Sir Thomas Southern and Lady Southern at the V.R.C.

With the exception of the water-polo in which they were defeated in the first round by the Mobile Machine Guns, the Infantry gained 14 points out of a possible 16 for the team championship.

In the High Diving the Infantry were easily the best trio, and secured 84 points out of a possible 90—an excellent achievement—E. da Rosa the Colony champion was excellent and the three swallows which comprised the event were perfectly executed.

L. Rosa Pereira was very disappointing and the weakest of the three, although last year he was the Champion a very close shave.

In Mrs. Schreuder's heat, Miss Doris Hunt swam an excellent race and towards the middle of the second length led Mrs. Schreuder, who was, however, reserving her strength for the final. The latter pulled up in the last few seconds when she overhauled Miss Hunt.

Miss Hunt has made vast strides since the last time I saw her in action, and I should not be at all surprised if she offered a stern challenge for the Ladies' Colony title in the near future.

Another surprise in the Ladies' event was the eclipse of Mrs. Read by Miss A. Fowler, the latter entering the final as a result of a touch in the first heat.

The pillow fight was disappointing in that most of the competitors had withdrawn and only five entrants took part. L. Soares, last year's winner was again successful.

Stern Struggle
The first event, the 300 Yards Team Race, was very exciting and the winners, the Infantry, took the lead for the first time when L. Soares picked up on Pote Hunt of the Static Machine Guns. J. Souza and E. da Rosa putting the finishing touches with the Statics not far behind. The winners returned the time 2 mins. 54 secs.

Brilliant Challenge
In the Men's 100 Yards Invitation race, W. Lawrence the Victoria Recreation Club's champion swam an excellent race to win narrowly from A. A. da Rosa in 59-3/5 seconds, which is just outside his record.

A. A. da Rosa has also made a vast improvement and swam brilliantly to fully extend the champion throughout.

H. L. Ozorio started off in fine style and held an early lead, but as the second and third lengths arrived, he tired and gave way to Lawrence and Rosa, the latter two fighting for supremacy, the winner's time being three fifths of a second better than the runner-up.

The High Diving event was disappointing in that the three divers nominated were all "swallows," but the subsequent exhibition by E. F. Selk, Ed da Rosa, the Colony's Diving champion and Lionel Rosa Pereira made up for the loss of interest in the event.

Needless to say the Infantry carried off the Diving easily.

The 100 Yards Medley was another Infantry victory, Lionel Rosa Pereira giving them the lead in the Backstroke, with Selk of the Static Machine Guns close behind. B. Gosano failed to increase the lead in his side-stroke against Donn of the Statics, but Marques gave E. da Rosa a substantial lead in the 25 yards Breast stroke, with Pote-Hunt and G. Fowler of the Statics and Mobile Units, respectively, not far behind.

The free style men saw E. da Rosa walk away with the race from J. V. Gittins and T. Paget.

Water Polo

The final event was the water-polo between the Mobile Machine Guns and the Static Machine Guns, the former winning by five clear goals in a very one-sided affair.

Paget opened the score in the first half with a skidding ball. A few seconds later, G. Fowler increased the score when Meadows misthrew, and the former had little difficulty in netting.

From the restart the Mobile changed their tactics and as a result of team changes during play, G. Fowler put the Mobile Unit three goals ahead with an excellent snap goal.

Three minutes from the interval Aris cleverly deflected the ball for the Mobile's fourth goal and Sloan added the fifth just before the whistle.

In the second half, as a result of L. G. Robertson being ordered out of the water for a two-yard infringement, the Statics took up the offensive and playing against six men, held their opponents until the final whistle.

After the gala prizes were distributed in the ball-room of the Club-house.

President Answers Critics

Before calling upon Lady Southern to distribute the prizes, Major E. J. R. Mitchell, President of the Swimming Committee thanked the V.R.C. for the arrangements and his Committee for their splendid efforts. He paid particular tribute to the work of 2nd-Lt. F. W. T. Ross the Chairman, and to CSM. G. T. Padgett, M.B.E., the Hon. Secretary and Treasurer to whose efforts the Corps were indebted.

Major Mitchell said it was an appropriate time to reply to a Mr. "X" who queried the method of dividing the Units up for the sports, and said that as could be seen from the success of the gala, Mr. "X" had been answered by the splendid results.

In conclusion, Major Mitchell said he would be very grateful if Mr. "X" could secure a few more recruits for his particular unit (applause).

Lady Southern, after distributing the prizes was the recipient of a Souvenir from Major Mitchell. Dancing to the strains of the "Blue Rhythm Orchestra," was indulged in until the early hours of the morning.

DAVIS CUP TENNIS

Britain Lead America

London, July 23.

Victories by Fred Perry and Bunny Austin in their singles matches gave Britain a 2-1 lead over America in the Challenge Round of the Davis Cup tennis tournament at Wimbledon, to-day. The results were:—

F. J. Perry (Britain) beat Sydney Wood 6-1, 4-6, 5-7, 6-0, 4-2.
H. W. Austin beat Frank Shields, 6-4, 8-6, 6-1.

A crowd of 17,000 surrounded the centre court in fine weather to watch the opening match between Austin and Shields.

Austin immediately found his length and took Shields' cannonball services with delightful ease, skilfully steering his returns down the sidelines with unflinching regularity.

The British player jumped into a 3-1 lead, but Shields then speeded up his game and smashed with terrific power to secure the next three games for a 4-3 lead.

Austin recovered, and, playing at the peak of his form, he ran out for set at 6-4 as the result of fast and exciting play in which his perfect length to the corners proved the determining factor.

Shields crashed four untakeable aces in the fifth game of the second set, but Austin never let-up for a second, and, bringing off several glorious smashes, took a two sets lead at 6-4.

Playing the game of his life, Austin carried all before him in the third set, dropping only one game.

Perry Confident

Perry was very confident and led 3-0 with the loss of only four points. A high wind caused the dust to swirl.

In the second set Wood found his length and forced Perry to the net with deep backhanders. Perry advanced and engaged in a tense volleying duel and led 3-2 after which Wood, in an inspired spell, firmly established himself at the net.

The American player put away crisp backhand volleys and smashed brilliantly, leaving Perry standing with shots on both wings of the court. Perry was stung to retaliation and the game developed into a tremendous battle in the third set.

Perry led 4-2, but Wood levelled 4-4 and after 6-5 had been called, the American took the set at 7-5. He eased up in the fourth set with the result that he lost the set without winning a single game. Perry broke through twice in the final set to win by 6-3.

CANTON NEWS
AND NOTESReturn of Air
Mission

(From Our Special Correspondent)
Canton, July 29.
High officers of the Canton Army Air Corps will go to Hong Kong tomorrow to welcome home Lieut. General Wong Kwong-yui, Commandant of the Army Air Corps, who will arrive at the Colony aboard the Italian steamer Conte Verde on August 1.

General Wong is accompanied by Colonel Ting Chi Hsu, wing commander, Colonel Mei Lung On, director of the aircraft works, and Colonel Chang Chi Shuen, adjutant of the air force. The four officers first visited the United States, and then they proceeded to Europe. In Croydon they saw an aerial exhibition staged by the Royal Air Force.

The Canton air mission later went to France and Italy. They left Brindisi on July 8. General Wong Kwong-yui has secured necessary equipment and information for the improvement of the Canton Air Force.

On A Mysterious Mission

A Japanese official believed to be the director of the Asiatic Department of the Tokyo Foreign Office, has arrived here with Mr. Hattori, Japanese Vice-Consul in Canton, following the recent conference in Formosa. This Japanese official but has not yet secured a definite time for making a call. Probably he will call on an official designed to meet him by the municipal authorities.

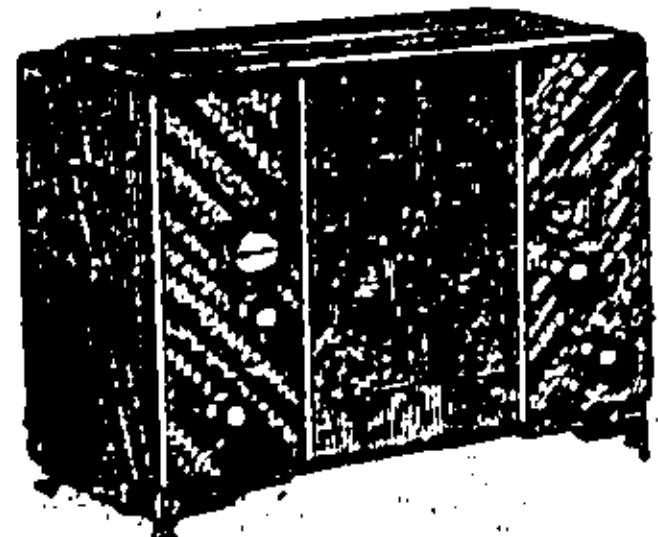

The Japanese consulate general in Shanghai declined to receive newspapermen and did not wish to make known the mission of this official in Canton.

Nanchang Parley Postponed

Lt-General Li Shang Yung, staff officer of the 1st Group Army, started last Thursday for Nanchang to attend the anti-Communist conference called by General Chiang Kai Shek, but returned from Hong Kong upon learning that the conference is postponed from August 1 to a latter date.

It was reported that there is a dissension in the Red camp and that the Communist soldiers can no longer fight. On the other hand, Amoy reports stated that the Communists are making a strong attack on northern Fukien with a view to reaching the sea.

However, the southern Kiangsi front held by Cantonese troops is very quiet. The Reds are not bothering about the South but appear to be concentrating their efforts to capture a port on the coast of Fukien. It is said that the Nanking military authorities have sent cruisers to the Fukien coast so as to prevent the contact by the Reds with the outside world.

Tokyo, July 28.
Despite obstructive measures abroad, Japan's foreign trade, as revealed in the latest statistics, is showing a steady development since the new year.

This is due largely to the change in the policy of catering to the principal markets to one of developing markets everywhere, notably in Central and South America, Africa and Egypt.

It is noteworthy that the export of cotton and textiles has created a new record.

Belgrade, July 28.
Hundreds of Austrian insurgents sought refuge in Yugoslavian territory on Saturday, the fleeing men being so hard pressed by pursuers between the towns of Ragusa and Mura that they threw their rifles and then themselves into the river and swam to safety to the foreign shore. All insurgents not voluntarily giving up their weapons were overpowered by the Yugoslavian frontier police and forced to join their more peaceful comrades in the internment camps.

The Belgrade Press on Saturday reports the insurrection movement as growing stronger all over Austria with Carinthia as the storm centre where the insurgents were holding many towns.

Vienna, July 28.
According to an announcement, the Heimatschutz purgative action in Styria may now be regarded as at an end. The Heimatschutz companies from Upper Austria and Salzburg in Lower Austria, acting jointly with the Heimatschutz in Styria have cleared the frontier districts of all insurrectionists. Regular traffic has been resumed almost everywhere.

The losses of the Heimatschutz which, with the Federal army and the gendarmes carried out the fighting, have been very heavy. According to the latest reports, thirty were killed in Styria. In Carinthia numerous skirmishes took place in the evening with stragglers of insurgents. Otherwise everything was quiet in Upper and Lower Austria, from Varazdiner to Burgenland.

BRITISH TRADE
SITUATIONIncreases Shown For Half Year

London, July 27.
In reviewing the British trade situation in the House of Commons to-day, the President of the Board of Trade, Mr. Walter Runciman, said in the first six months of this year exports totalling £190,000,000, which was an increase of £15,000,000 over the first six months of last year.

The most notable increases in exports referred to the woollen and worsted trades, which showed a £3,000,000 rise on the half year and in machinery and iron and steel, each of which showed a rise of £2,000,000. These figures, he said, although not sensational, showed the tendency was in the right direction.

No improvement had occurred in the cotton trade, which remained one of the most unfortunate of the great industries. He was, however, hopeful that schemes now being discussed in Lancashire might produce better results.

Unemployment Figures

There had been during the last eighteen months a remarkable change in the country's unemployment figures, but any further big reduction could not be expected from expansion of the home market alone which had done so well as nearly to reach saturation point. It was necessary to rely on world trade, for further substantial improvement in the employment figures.

World trade was unfortunately still paralysed in many regions. The best they could say was that the decline was being arrested, and that Britain's share in the restricted world trade was definitely on the increase.

Mr. Runciman said he had signed commercial agreements with 13 countries and negotiations were proceeding with four others. In every case, the agreements showed an increase in British exports to the countries concerned.

He expressed the opinion that world trade was too much at the mercy of sudden political disturbances for him to make any optimistic prophecy, but he thought the essential conditions for trade revival were present, if only a general restoration of confidence abroad could be secured.

OFFER OF FREE
SCHOLARSHIPGerman Friendship
With China

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, July 29.
The Sun Yat Sen University here is offered a free scholarship by the Alexander von Humboldt-Stiftung, a German educational institute in Berlin. Board is also included in this scholarship, and the successful candidate has to provide only travelling and personal expenses.

In making a selection, the Sun Yat Sen University is requested to recommend a candidate with a bachelor's or master's degree who has a reading knowledge of the German language. The Alexander von Humboldt-Stiftung hopes that the holder of the scholarship will be able upon returning to China to teach German to Chinese students as a means to strengthen friendship between China and Germany.

At present only one scholarship is available. The offer was a result of the visit of a representative of the Alexander von Humboldt-Stiftung to Canton. He went round the new grounds of the university at Shek Pei and was much impressed by the new buildings under construction.

The scholarship requires the students to study political science, economics and other subjects in social sciences. The scholarship is an attempt to encourage Chinese students to study in Germany. The German Consul General in Canton is instrumental largely in arranging this scholarship.

At present the medical school of the Sun Yat Sen University is taught mostly by German professors and the system of instruction and requirement are modelled after German universities.

A PITCHED BATTLE

Formosans Take Law
Into Own Hands

Amoy, July 23.
A pitched battle between a handful of Formosans and Chinese military men took place at Hsuan yesterday shortly after one o'clock in the afternoon.

From information gleaned, it appeared that the Formosans were employees of a factory in Hsuan. Some time back a coat was stolen from the premises, and suspicion was levelled at a Chinese labourer who was in the habit of coming to the factory to draw water from a well there.

Yesterday the man visited the well, and he was summarily seized and dragged into the factory. The Formosans set upon him, it was alleged, and the poor man was so badly man-handled that a soldier, who happened to pass by, took upon himself to interfere.

The allegation was that the Formosans told the soldier to mind his own business, otherwise he would be treated in the same fate. The soldier left to get reinforcement. He returned with an officer and some men, but the Formosans, nothing daunted, attacked them all; in the melee, the officer was badly bruised and his uniform was torn.

The vanquished party went off to seek further reinforcement. This time they returned with police and more men, and they came armed. They demanded the Formosans to surrender the poor captive. This was refused and further fighting took place. After a hard set-to, the Formosans had to capitulate, and four or five of them were taken into custody.

SHIPPING BECOMES
NORMAL AGAINOnly A Few Vessels Delayed
By Typhoon

Shanghai, July 24.
The typhoon which passed Shanghai has now gone, and once again ships are coming and going according to schedule. As far as Shanghai was concerned the typhoon has been a blessing as it broke the run of continuous hot weather. The wind was not strong enough to cause damage. The Whangpoo did not overflow as it did last year, and the only people who were seriously troubled were the shipping companies. Both the China Navigation Co. and the S.S. Sincere, which should have arrived in Shanghai yesterday, are coming in to-day. Both vessels sheltered during Sunday at Taicang.

Yesterday the S. Shunkien from Chefoo and Weihaiwei left Taicang and she is expected alongside the French Bund at 4 a.m. to-day. The S. Sinking is arriving at the French Bund at 7 a.m. to-day. The S. S. Shunkien will leave again for northern ports on Wednesday at noon. The S. S. Sinking is leaving for the south on Thursday. The C.N. S. S. Sincere which was also delayed arrived in Shanghai yesterday evening and is leaving for the French Bund at noon to-day for Amoy and Swatow. Among the S. S. Sincere, S. S. Sincere, the S. S. Sincere is expected to-day at Old Ningpo Wharf from Tientsin, though her arrival is not definite. The S. S. Yensung from Tientsin will be alongside Hunt's Wharf to-day only a few hours off schedule time. The S. S. Chiaping from Foochow arrived yesterday evening and is now at buoy 8. Due to the typhoon the D.K.K. S. S. Hosen Maru at Taicang sailed from that port yesterday and is expected alongside Whangpoo Wharf between 9 a.m. and 10 a.m. to-day. She will sail from Shanghai for Dairen tomorrow at 2 a.m. to-morrow.

DOMINION MEAT
EXPORTSAgreement In London

London, July 28.

A general agreement in principle that Dominion exports of meat to the United Kingdom should be reduced to approximately the levels prevailing in standard year 1931/32 on which the Ottawa meat agreement were based has been reached at a conference in London between representatives of the British Government and the Dominions High Commissioners.

Negotiations will now be carried on with a view to applying the principle during the six months which began on July 1 the day following the expiration of the Ottawa meat agreements.

A communique issued stated "It was recognised that during the period in which the Exchequer subsidy is being paid to a home producer of beef the United Kingdom Government would desire to arrange for a programme of imports of meat into the United Kingdom so that the value of the subsidy might not be depreciated by excessive imports. It was arranged that the Governments concerned should exchange views and information as to steps necessary to effect this purpose."

FIRE WOOD JUNKS

According to a Canton vernacular paper, it is reported that owing to heavy rains which fell in the Canton districts during the past few days, the water in the West river has reached high levels.

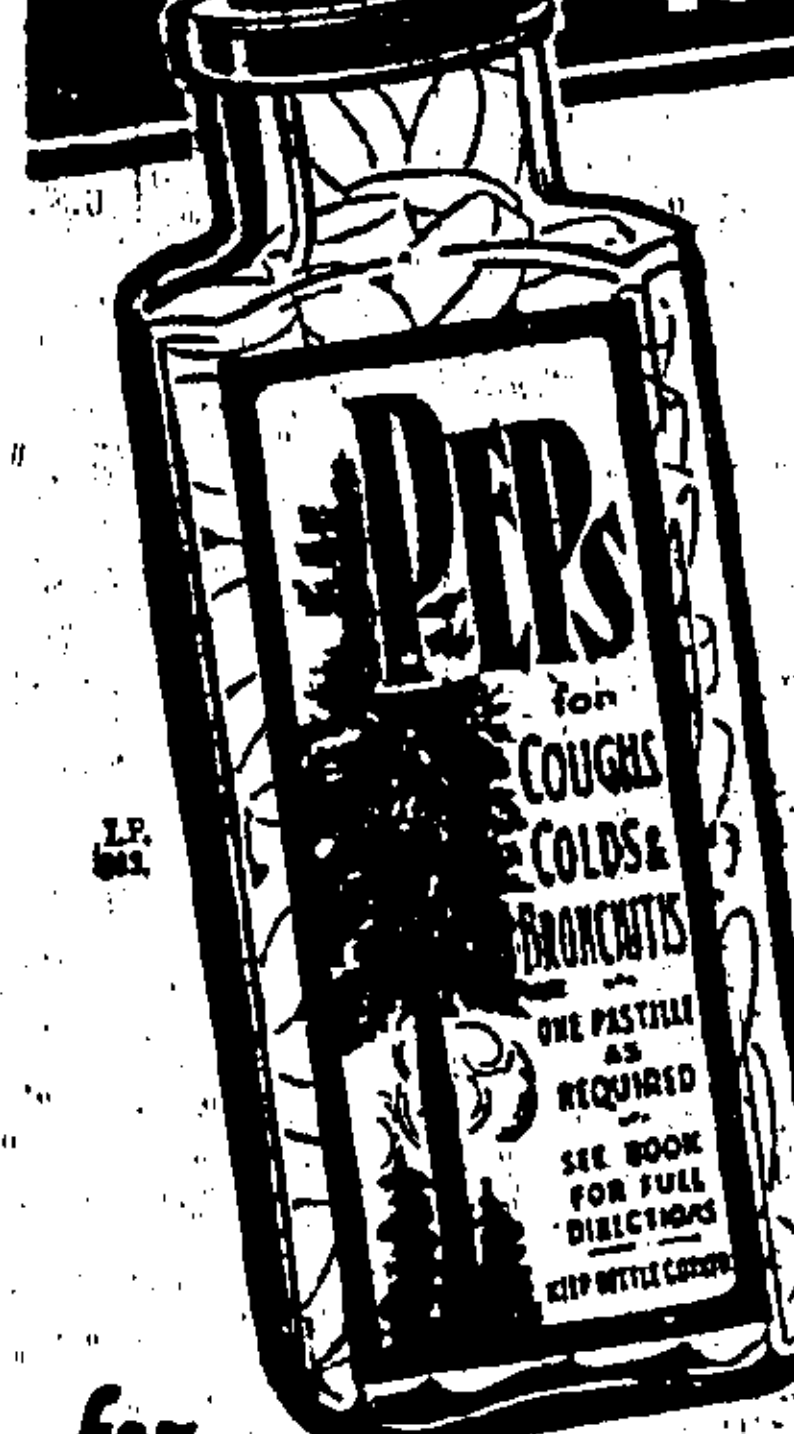

The fire-wood junks and timber rafts, that had assembled at different points of the river, took advantage of the opportunity to sail to their respective destinations.

It has been reported that over thirty fire-wood junks from the Pok Lo and the other districts, with thousands of piculs of fire-wood have left for Canton, and it is believed that there will be a fall in the price of fire-wood both in Canton and Hong Kong.

AMERICAN ORIENTAL FINANCE CORPORATION AND S. E. LEVY & CO.

New York, July 28.
The American Oriental Finance Corporation's report through their New York agents, Messrs. E. A. Pierce & Co., states:—
With the exception of utility issues, the market gave a satisfactory performance. However, the test period has not passed; consequently, a conservative attitude is best.
Wheat:—There was some replacing of holdings on less favourable Canadian crop news.
Cotton:—Prices advanced gradually, encouraged by more favourable interpretation of the foreign situation, a firmer stock market and lack of rain in Oklahoma and Texas. Replacing of holdings by long operators has appeared. There was some Trade buying, but on a similar scale.
Silver:—The market remains unchanged.
The following telegram was received from New York during the A.O.F.C. night services:
The "Austrian situation, the drought position and a probable lack of short interest are favourable factors. However, we believe the selling climax was reached yesterday and, in the likely absence of any catastrophic news, industrial issues should improve.
Prices opened higher on large blocks of shares being transacted. In the silver market, 319 Notices were quickly absorbed. Prices were lower on cables from abroad.
There is a good demand for cotton, with no pressure to sell. The market acts well.
Kroger Corporation has declared a dividend of 40 cents.
Bendix Aviation Corporation has declared a dividend of 72 cents.
Industrial Alcohol has declared a dividend of 90 cents for the past six months.
Procter and Gamble have declared ed a dividend of $2.09 for the past year.

New York, July 28.
Messrs. S. E. Levy & Company's report, through their New York agents, Messrs. White, Weld & Co., states:—

Stocks:—We continue to feel that at the present level the market offers an opportunity for both investment and speculative purchases.
Bonds:—High-grade bonds are firm and we understand that prices are slightly better, while second-grade issues are also a shade better.

Cotton:—The rains in Texas are considered as being insufficient; however, the Trade is hesitant to follow advances on account of poor business in the Goods' trade.
Wheat:—There was active short covering and new buying of Grains in anticipation of bullish private crop estimates on Monday.
WEATHER REPORT
Cotton:—The weather is cooler and generally showery. A forecast gives showery conditions in Arkansas and some relief in Texas but parts of the State have been missed by the rain.
Corn:—In the East and South Belts there are rains but in most of the Mid-West, and all of the North-West the weather is clear and the heat is returning. In the North Rockies the torrid conditions are spreading to the East.
The Corn crop is privately estimated at 1,700,000,000 bushels, which is considered as bullish.

CANTON GENERAL'S GENEROSITY

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, July 29.
It is reported that the two foreign prisoners, who received sentences of six months in connection with the gambling club on the West Bank, are receiving special treatment. General Chan, Chai Tong, is giving them an allowance of $1.50 daily for food, and $3.00 weekly for cigarettes.

THE EXCHANGE MARKET

MESSRS. ROZA BROS. REPORT

Sales were made in the London Silver market yesterday by China and India, but these interests also operated as buyers, giving the closing tone some steadiness. There were indications also of American and speculative support. Prices were 3/16 down at 20 1/16 for Ready and 20 3/16 for Forward. In New York the price was 48 cents and the market dull.
Sterling opened in New York at 5.03 1/2 and closed at 5.03 1/2. The market was quiet.

Market

The market was dull as usual. Only a few transactions were put through. For the greater part of the morning the tone was steady but subsequently the easier tone in Shanghai during the course of the morning was reflected in this market.

Sterling

Was offered at 1/5 25/32 with buyers asking 1/5 27/32 at which rates operators appeared disinclined to budge. A transaction at 1/5 25/32 was reported for August and late in the morning 1/5 13/16 was done for July. The closing market was 1/5 25/32 sellers, 1/5 13/16 buyers for July.

U.S. Dollars

Were offered at 37 3/16 with buyers at 37 7/16 leading to August business at the last rate. Subsequently 37 7/16 for August was not placed readily and later was unobtainable. The market closed with sellers at 37 5/16, buyers at 37 7/16 including August.

R. E. S. WYATT ON THE THIRD TEST

Why England Did Not Force Win

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 11. The third Test match dwindled sadly to a draw at Old Trafford, writes a correspondent. It will be remembered as the match of lost opportunities. If the English fielders had held their catches we might have a very different story to tell.

This, too, is the opinion of England's captain, R. E. S. Wyatt, who said, after the match:

"I am sorry England were not able to force a win. Our bad fielding and dropped catches lost us the match."

"We have every sympathy for the Australians in their illness, and hope their invalids will quickly recover."

It all began at 11.20 in the morning when Australia, with two wickets to fall, needed 50 runs to save the follow-on. When Chipperfield, still unfit but pluckily batting, was dropped by Hendren at second slip, and a golden chance had gone astray.

Chipperfield, incidentally, went straight back to bed after his innings, and he has since been taken by ambulance to Monsall Fever Hospital, Manchester, where Kippax went last night.

I understand that neither Kippax nor Chipperfield is seriously ill. But both are to be kept under observation for a few days as suspect diphtheria carriers. The rest of the Australian team have gone to Sheffield.

Follow-on Saved

Well, we must salute Australia for their gallant fight. Wall and O'Reilly, the last two Australian batsmen, held the fort most courageously and saved the follow-on. But we admired particularly the determined innings played by Woodfull yesterday and the fine efforts of Bradman and Chipperfield, the Australian invalids.

I am glad to say that Bradman felled to-day, and his liveliness suggested that he has completely recovered. But those dropped catches! We shall shake our heads dolefully when we remember them for many years to come.

Woodfull dropped in the slips before he had scored, and, this morning, three definite chances which English fielders failed to hold! The truth is that England did not deserve to win.

As an Australian cricketer said to me: "Any Test team which allows batsmen like O'Reilly and Wall to stay in for more than five minutes cannot expect much sympathy."

Wooden Stand On Fire

Still, when all is said and done, what a game it has been! Packed with excitement and played on a wicket which showed no signs of crumbling, despite the grilling sun.

The sun alone has made it memorable and almost made it tragic, for while Sutcliffe and Walters were battling for England this afternoon I suddenly noticed a thin tongue of flame flickering along one of the wooden stands.

In another moment the dry structure would surely have blazed up. But as the flames rose the spectators near by flapped them out with their coats, and began pouring bottles of ginger-beer upon them. Buckets of water were soon passed along, and the blaze was quenched before it had spread more than a few feet.

Twenty minutes later the Fire Brigade arrived, to cheers from the crowd, and since the cricket was dull a spectator near me belted: "Put 'em all out, firemen!"

At a quarter past four Wyatt declared England's second innings closed, and left Australia two hours to bat and 200 runs to make. Obviously, "Australia" would not go for the runs. Club cricketers on a Saturday afternoon might have had a crack, but not Test match players at Old Trafford.

Brown Quickly Out

There was, on the other hand, just the dimmest of chances that Australia would collapse, and when the rock like Brown was caught after five minutes' play we wondered whether, after all, sensation might not be turning round the corner.

However, the veteran Ponsford and the brilliant McCabe, tamed the weary England attack, and at six o'clock Wyatt threw the ball to Patsy Hendren. Patsy grinned all over his face and gave himself a clap. The crowd chuckled. Patsy was going to bowl. He did bowl, too. He paced out his run meticulously. He found another bowler's footmarks and, carefully smoothed them out.

He sent down a full pitch to McCabe, who respectfully played it back to him. A light-hearted finish to an exacting struggle, for after that over stumps were drawn, and someone remarked: "They had better have a troupe of performing seals for an occasion like this another time."

Naturally, there were fewer spectators here to-day, but during the match the attendance aggregate was approximately 90,000, and on Friday night alone I heard that over 9,000 bottles were collected on the popular side of the ground when play was over. All of them were empty, too, except one which contained embrocation.

Now we look forward to the fourth Test at Leeds in ten days' time. We hope, moreover, that all the Australians will be fit by then. Last night I gather they were seriously considering the possibility of seeking reinforcements. There are other Australian players over here who might fill the breach.

As for England, there is the feeling to be tightened up. Perhaps the placing of the field has something to do with it. There was a gap in the slips which looked ominous to me when the England fast bowlers were attacking this morning. And how about the luck of the toss? Will Wyatt win the spin again at Leeds?

Widdowsen, the Old Trafford groundsman has done his job perfectly here, and deserves nothing but praise for producing so durable and flawless a strip of turf. I think though, that we go too far in the preparation of wickets.

It is time the bowlers were given a chance, a fact which becomes more evident as this dry summer continues. But wicket or no wicket, these Test matches are certainly keeping us interested. The score is still one all—and so to Leeds.

CHIPPERFIELD IN HOSPITAL

Chipperfield had a tremendous reception when he left the field and slowly walked up the steps of the members' pavilion at Old Trafford. When he entered he almost bumped into two people standing near the door, but a way was made for him by the crowd.

Halfway across the room he seemed to stumble, and clutched at the corner of the table. Then with bowed head and perspiration streaming down his face, he quickly recovered and ran up the stairs to the dressing room.

After dressing he was taken in a car to his hotel, and shortly afterwards went in an ambulance to the Monsall Fever Hospital, to which Kippax was removed on Monday night.

Both Chipperfield and Kippax are suffering from a mild form of tonsillitis, and are being detained as a precaution until it can be established whether a diphtheria germ is present in either case.

All the swabs taken on Monday of the throats of the Australian players, and Mr. Bushby, manager, and Mr. Bull, treasurer, were found negative, except that of Chipperfield.

Dr. D. S. Sutherland, medical superintendent at Monsall Fever Hospital, Manchester, said last night:

"We shall not be able to say for a day or two anything about the throats of Chipperfield and Kippax being free from diphtheria germs. Swabs will have to be taken on three successive days, and each requires 24 hours to develop. Under the most favourable circumstances they will be here for about a week. They should also have a week's rest, in view of their tonsillitis trouble."

"When a body of people living together happen to get sore throats, a medical inspection is advisable, and sometimes a carrier is spotted and he has to be isolated."

GERMAN SHARE MARKET

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright))

Berlin, July 27. Herr von Papen's appointment as special emissary to Austria with the mission to work for the betterment of relationships between the two countries was most favourably received in the share market, so that business was lively and prices all round advanced on Thursday.

Fixed interest securities were not uniform, but in general no recovery was noticeable. Call Money 4 1/2 and 4 3/4. Young Loan 1/2 weaker at 90 1/2. Reichsbank declined 1/2 to 151 1/2. Dye Trusts improved 1/2 to 148 1/2. Salzedorf Potash rose 1/2 to 163. German Steel Trusts jumped 1 to 42. German Mineral Oils were 1/2 firmer at 116. Siemenshalske weakened 1/2 to 147 1/2, and Bemberg Rayon advanced 1/2.

Business in the share market started weak although business was concentrated mostly on special classes of shares, such as Machine Works and Chemical Engineering. As the week advanced, investors showed more caution especially after the Austrian crisis. However, prompt action by the German Government not only dissociated itself from the Austrian Insurrectionists and the removal from office of the National-Socialist Inspector, Hahlich, but also in taking the initiative to normalise relations with Austria by the despatch of von Papen on a special mission.

This restored confidence whereupon the market recovered although the general price level was not so high as the close of last week. Fixed interest securities remained dull, being neglected the whole week with prices sagging little but continuously—all the time, but apparently this was not affected either way by the Austrian events. No sign of improvement in this market is perceptible.

Everything had gone according to schedule until last Wednesday morning when the junk was caught in a sudden squall. The sails were snapped by the violence of the wind and the boat was tossed about by the heavy sea, and finally crashed against the rocks and sank almost immediately. Two of the crew were washed ashore but it is feared that the remainder lost their lives.

SHANGHAI BOY'S SUCCESS

Amazing Golf By
"Young" Ferrier

Shanghai, July 24

The Australian papers once again are full of the doings of Jim Ferrier, a former Shanghai boy and the son of a one-time
Shanghai golf champion. Young Ferrier, who is not yet of age, for several years has been making the Australian golfing public with his achievements, he having collected a most formidable list of champions and records, and now he has capped all by winning within one month one of the most coveted amateur trophies and all the three Queensland championships—the open, the amateur, and (in partnership) the foursomes—equalling one record and breaking another whilst so doing.

These performances led one paper to put Ferrier in its gallery of athletic celebrities in the following terms:—

"Jim Ferrier's phenomenal golf in winning every title in the recent Queensland open championship meeting is the culminating triumph of his four seasons in big golf. Ferrier was 19 in February. In the history of N.S.W. golf, no player up to the same age has, even approached Ferrier's performances. At 16 he won the State amateur championship, he has competed twice in the open championship of Australia, and been runner-up on each occasion, and is the holder of the N.S.W. close title. Whether Fer-rier's deeds outshine or are out-shone by Ivo Whitton's amazing record while in his teens cannot,
of course, be equitably gauged, but, at 19, Whitton had won the open championship twice. He had such phenomenal success in competitions that his handicap was plus eight. On the same basis Ferrier's handicap would be "plus six."

Another writer stated:—"Jim Ferrier created a tremendous impression on the Queensland golfing public during his recent visit to the northern championship meeting. He is the personality player of Australian golf to-day. A crowd of elderly enthusiasts were intently watching Jim practise brassie shots, prior to the Queensland
Golf Club. One white-haired old gentleman gazed with obvious awe as Ferrier despatched, screamer after screamer away down the course. Then the Manly boy hit a super shot. "Ah," sighed the old gentleman, "just let me do one like that—then death!"

May Go Abroad

The prospect of Ferrier being sent overseas was mentioned at the presentation of trophies. Ferrier had done more for Queensland than any other golfer they had ever had in the State, said
Mr. L. P. Power, president of the Queensland Golf Council.

Mr. T. V. Hesley said Ferrier's victories in Brisbane, he hoped, would finalise a movement in Sydney to send him overseas.
They had a world-beater in Ferrier, who had every shot a golfer required in his bag.

Mr. Radcliffe said that he had not seen a golfer of Ferrier's calibre since Hagen and Kirkwood visited Australia.
